New Orleans resident jailed in Hancock for alleged arson, fraud

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

A New Orleans resident was jailed in Hancock County last week after allegedly faking her own kidnapping, burning her car and filing a false police report, according to Sheriff Steve Garber.

"The incident occurred on September 15, 2003 on Highway 90, west of Waveland," Sheriff's Investigator Deron Cuevas said. "Tina Lamia, 33, of New Orleans was arrested by New Orleans Police (last week), and then extradited to the Hancock County Criminal Justice where she was charged with arson of an insured property and making a false report of a crime, and her bond was set at $52,000."

Hancock's environment, economy, both at stake

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Though the large turnout indicated interest in the draft of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's Environmental impact statement, comments on the document proceeded at a soft roar. Few Hancock County residents spoke. Bay St. Louis Councilman Jim Thriffley was the only Hancock-area official to speak. District Engineer Col. Robert Keyser and Tetra Tech representative Tom Magness led the meeting.

The main complaint from conservation proponents was the claim that the Corps did little if anything to actually stop the erosion of wetlands by development, while business interests were concerned that the statement might take too firm a stand on large development interests.

Riley Morse told the audience that since 1992 there has been an increase of 30,000 acres to urban use, representing a 51 percent increase in urban areas along the coast. Wetlands have seen a decline of 41 percent, with emergent wetland seeing a decrease of 31 percent, he said. In contrast natural areas have seen a decrease of only 8 percent, said Morse, but that percentage represents a loss of 70,000 acres. Morse said the EIS must take a firmer tone with the predictions of adverse affects on the environment by development.

Henderson Point resident Nonnie DeBardeleben said she

2003 was busy year for Bay-Waveland NTF

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The Bay-Waveland Narcotic Task Force, (BWNTF), was very busy during 2003, according to directors Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell and Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil.

The task force worked 136 cases locally involving various drug charges, the highest number being the sale of crack cocaine at 52; sale of marijuana, 19; possession of crack cocaine, 18; sale of prescription forgery and possession of marijuana (felony), seven cases each; sale of ecstasy and possession of powder cocaine, six cases each, according to the chiefs year-end-report.

The year yielded quantities of illegal narcotics taken off the Bay-Waveland streets as follows: Marijuana, 3277.79 grams and two plants; crack cocaine, 138.6 grams; powder cocaine, 39.6 grams; ecstasy, 742 dosage units; methamphetamine, 3.7 grams and a large amount of precursors; prescription medicine, 1105 doses; and counterfeit substance, .2 grams.

The BWNTF works in conjunction with the MS Bureau of Narcotics, the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, the Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), and the High Intensity Drug Traffic Area (HIDTA).

The BWNTF's 2003 activities included:

- In February, agents wrapped up "Operation Afternoon Delight," in which 25 violations and 40 felony charges were produced. Assisting were the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, DEA, HIDTA, ATF and the National Guard.

- March, 2003, agents surprised narcotics violators with a roundup called "Crack House Crackdown." This operation targeted street level dealers. A Bay St. Louis Fire Truck was used to surprise the dealers as they were selling their illegal narcotics mostly crack cocaine. Several of the violators arrested were jailed without bond, due to being out on bond from the previous roundup, the report states.

- April, 2003, agents conducted a search warrant where a subject was arrested on three counts of sale of a controlled substance, (crack cocaine), with agents seizing a stolen shotgun and two rifles. Agents also participated in an undercover sting operation with MS Bureau of Narcotics that targeted suspects selling marijuana out of a Highway Lounge in which one suspect was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana.

- July produced an undercover operation that targeted prostitution and drug dealing from a local motel. Agents broke up a prostitution ring and arrested two suspects for sale of crack cocaine and soliciting of prostitution.

- December saw BWNTF agents wrapping up and undercover operation titled "Zero Tolerance." This led to the arrest of over 25 violators and 40 felony charges, as agents targeted street level, as well as mid and high level dealers.

Agents were able to infiltrate several of the local bars, as well as arrest several violators that were on probation, or out on bond for previous felony narcotics arrests.

Also in December, three "Buy Busts" were conducted that led to the arrest of three high level dealers. One of the busts led to the seizure of over 400 dosage units of ecstasy that was transported across state lines.

This individual, as well as two others are being included in a federal conspiracy case headed by the DEA.

"The BWNTF's working relationship with other drug agencies leads to high quality dealers and longer sentences in the federal system for suspects convicted on charges with illegal narcotics activities. This enables the local task force to be involved with higher level dealers, not just street dealers that would normally be targeted by the B-W task force," Varnell and McNeil said.

Varnell and McNeil continued, "The Task Force also works with the public sector and depends on citizens to report any and all possible illegal narcotics activities, suspicious persons and also receives anonymous tips. Any and all calls are very helpful from the community."

The Bay Waveland Narcotics Task Force can be contacted by calling 467-5NTF (5683), or through the Bay Police at 467-9221, or Waveland Police at 467-3669.

Waveland Fire Dept. partners with National Weather Service

THE SEA COAST ECHO

According to the National Weather Service Americans live in the most severe weather prone country on Earth. Each year, Americans cope with an average of 10,000 thunderstorms, 2500 floods, 1,000 Tornadoes, as well as an average of 6 deadly hurricanes. Potentially deadly weather impacts every American. Communities can now become a partner with the National Weather Service's TURN AROUND DON'T DROWN program to help educate residents on the hazards of flooding. On October 30, 2003 the City of Waveland Fire Department received a letter that it had met the criteria and was approved to become a Partner with the National Weather Service Southern Region Headquarters. Chief Garcia said he's very proud that the City of Waveland was approved to become a partner in the program and that Waveland is the very first in the state of Mississippi to become a partner with the National Weather Service Southern Region Headquarters TURN AROUND DON'T DROWN Program.

Chief Garcia stated according to the National Weather Service each year, more deaths occur due to flooding than from any other thunderstorm related hazard. Why? The main reason is people underestimate the force and power of water. Many of the deaths occur in automobiles, as they are swept downstream. Of these drownings, many are preventable. But too many people continue to drive around the barriers that warn you the road is flooded.

According to Chief Garcia nearly half of all flood fatalities are auto related. Never drive your automobile into moving water, especially if you cannot tell how deep the water is. Water weighs 62.4 lbs per cubic foot and typically flows downstream at 6 to 12 miles per hour. When a vehicle stalls in the water, the water's momentum is transferred to the car. For each foot the water rises, 500 lbs of lateral force is applied to the automobile. But the biggest factor is buoyancy. For each foot the water rises up the side of the car, the car displaces 1500 lbs. of water. In effect the automobile weighs 1500 lbs, less for each foot the

Waveland receives FEMA Fire Grant

Fire Chief David A. Garcia and Asst. Fire Chief Mike Smith have announced that Congressman Gene Taylor and Senators Cochran and Lott's offices have informed them that the Waveland Fire Department was awarded The Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program Administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the United States Fire Administration (USFA). Waveland Fire Department applied for the grant under the Firefighting Equipment and Wellness and Fitness Programs section of the grant. And has been awarded $130,095.00 with a local match of $14,455.00. Chief Garcia said that the Grant and local match money would be used to purchase Fire Fighting Equipment and fund a wellness and fitness program for firefighters. Chief Garcia said that the local match will come from the State Insurance Rebate Grant Funds that make this $144,550.00 totally funded by grants and will be no cost to the city of Waveland.

Chief Garcia said that more than 19,950 fire departments volunteer and career applied for grant awards this year, submitting requests totaling almost $2.5 billion.

A lengthy peer review, involving 300 fire service representatives from throughout the United States was conducted by the USFA over the past several months.

Chief Garcia said Congress appropriated, and President Bush signed into law, $750 million in direct assistance in support of the nation's firefighters and the services they deliver.

water rises. Two feet of water will carry away most automobiles. Garcia advises whether you are driving or walking, if you come to a flooded road, Turn Around Don't Drown. You will not know the depth of the water nor will you know the condition of the road under the water.

Chief Garcia said that people are putting themselves and passengers in danger when they drive around streets closure signs to drive down flooded roads. During the flooding of the 2002 and 2003 Hurricane seasons Chief Garcia said that he and Assistance Fire Chief Mike Smith witnessed drivers ignoring flooded street closure signs and that he hopes that becoming a Partner with the TURN AROUND DON'T DROWN Program that his department will be able to educate drivers of the dangers of driving down flooded roads.

Follow these safety rules:

- Monitor the NOAA Weather Radio, or your favorite news source for vital weather related information.

- If flooding occurs, got to higher ground. Get out of areas subject to flooding. This includes dips, low spots, canyons, washes etc.

- Avoid areas already flooded, especially if the water is flowing fast. Do not attempt to cross-flowing streams, TURN AROUND DON'T DROWN

- Roadbeds may be washed out under floodwaters. NEVER drive through flooded roadways. TURN AROUND DON'T DROWN. If your vehicle is suddenly caught in rising water leave it immediately and seek higher ground.

- Do not camp or park your vehicle along streams and washes, particularly during threatening conditions.

- Be especially cautious at night when it is harder to recognize flood dangers

Flash Floods

Except for heat related fatalities, more deaths occur from flooding than any other hazard. Why? Most people fail to realize the power of water. For example, six inches of fast-moving flood water can knock you off your feet.

While the number of fatalities can vary dramatically with weather conditions from year to year, the national 30-year average for flood deaths is 127. That compares with a 30-year average of 73 deaths for lightning, 55 for tornadoes and 16 for hurricanes. National Weather Service data also shows:

- Nearly half of all flash flood fatalities are vehicle-related.

- The majority of victims are males, and
- Flood deaths affect all age groups.

Most flash floods are caused by slow moving thunderstorms, thunderstorms that move repeatedly over the same area or heavy rains from tropical storms and hurricanes. These floods can develop within minutes or hours depending on the intensity and duration of the rain, the topography, soil conditions and ground cover.

Flash floods can roll boulders, tear out trees, destroy buildings, and bridges, and scour out new channels. Rapidly rising water can reach heights of 30 feet or more. Furthermore, flash flood-producing rains can also trigger catastrophic mud slides.

Occasionally, floating debris or ice can accumulate at a natural or man-made obstruction and restrict the flow of water. Water held back by the ice jam or debris dam can cause flooding upstream. Subsequent flash flooding can occur downstream if the obstruction should suddenly release.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

This is the time of year when folks along the Coast between New Orleans and Mobile need to get their walking shoes out for the annual Mardi Gras parades.

Of course, the supper parade for the Bay-Waveland area is the annual Krewe of Nereids.

The ladies of Nereids has a great organization and held their 38th Annual Ball last night at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum.

Nereids big parade is set to take place two weeks from today, Sunday March 15.

If you are a newcomer to the area, the Krewe of Nereids parade is one that you do not want to miss.

Nereids is followed by several floats from the Krewe of Eros, you know the men have to follow the ladies and then the Krewe of Hancock. Usually there are 100 or so units in this parade.

The parade forms in the Kmart Shopping Center, Waveland, travels east on Highway 90 to Bouslog by post office, the west on 90 to Waveland Avenue where it disbands.

Highway 90 is a great place for a parade as there is lots of viewing area from the median and shoulders. There are many side streets for parking too.

By the way, Nereids starting time is 1 p.m. and the parade's Captain has it rolling at 1 p.m.

A great parade for the youngsters in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis is the annual Krewe of Kids which will take place on Saturday, February 14.

The Krewe of Kids forms at North Bay Elementary on Dunbar Avenue and starts at 11 a.m.

Kids of all ages participate in the parade which disallows motorized vehicles. The parade goes down Dunbar and returns to the school to disband. There a lots of viewing areas for this parade too.

Adding to the excitement on Sunday, February 15 is the Krewe of Selene and Royal-T parade in Diamondhead.

This is an evening parade which starts at 6:30 p.m. and travels the main drag in Diamondhead. Very good viewing areas there too.

On Saturday, February 21, the Krewe of Diamondhead parade starts at noon. This parade goes down the main drag of Diamondhead.

On Sunday, February 22, St. Paul's Carnival Association Mardi Gras parade in Pass Christian takes place. This is a parade in which many family and groups have been coming together for many years.

On Mardi Gras Day, in Bay St. Louis, is the big day for the Krewe of Real People. The parade travels downtown, Bay St. Louis and starts at 1 p.m.

There are other parades in Gulfport, Biloxi, and of course New Orleans and Mobile.

So, in the next several weeks there will be many parades along the coast.

I hope each and everyone of you will have a great Mardi Gras season.

President Bush's 2004 Agenda

In his State of the Union speech President Bush outlined an agenda which includes the War on Terrorism, tax cuts, job security and improving worker training, using our nation's community colleges.

Passing a good national energy policy, a bold highway bill and preserving our military's edge must also be legislative priorities for 2004, and the American people deserve action on all these issues regardless of the partisan to-and-fro that an election year usually brings.

Tax Cuts: The tax relief passed during President's Bush's first term is working. The economy is growing. Better jobs are being created to replace older, lower-paying, lower-skilled jobs.

For instance, Mississippi is gaining more than 500 new jobs just with an announcement last week by Textron Fasteners, an automotive products supplier, that the company will locate a new plant in Greenville. This follows recent job growth announcements in Mississippi by global companies like Northrop Grumman, Rolls-Royce, and Corus-Bisteel.

It's a tried and true formula: when businesses and individuals are allowed to keep more of their money, businesses expand, jobs are created, people have money to spend and individuals throughout the economic spectrum benefit.

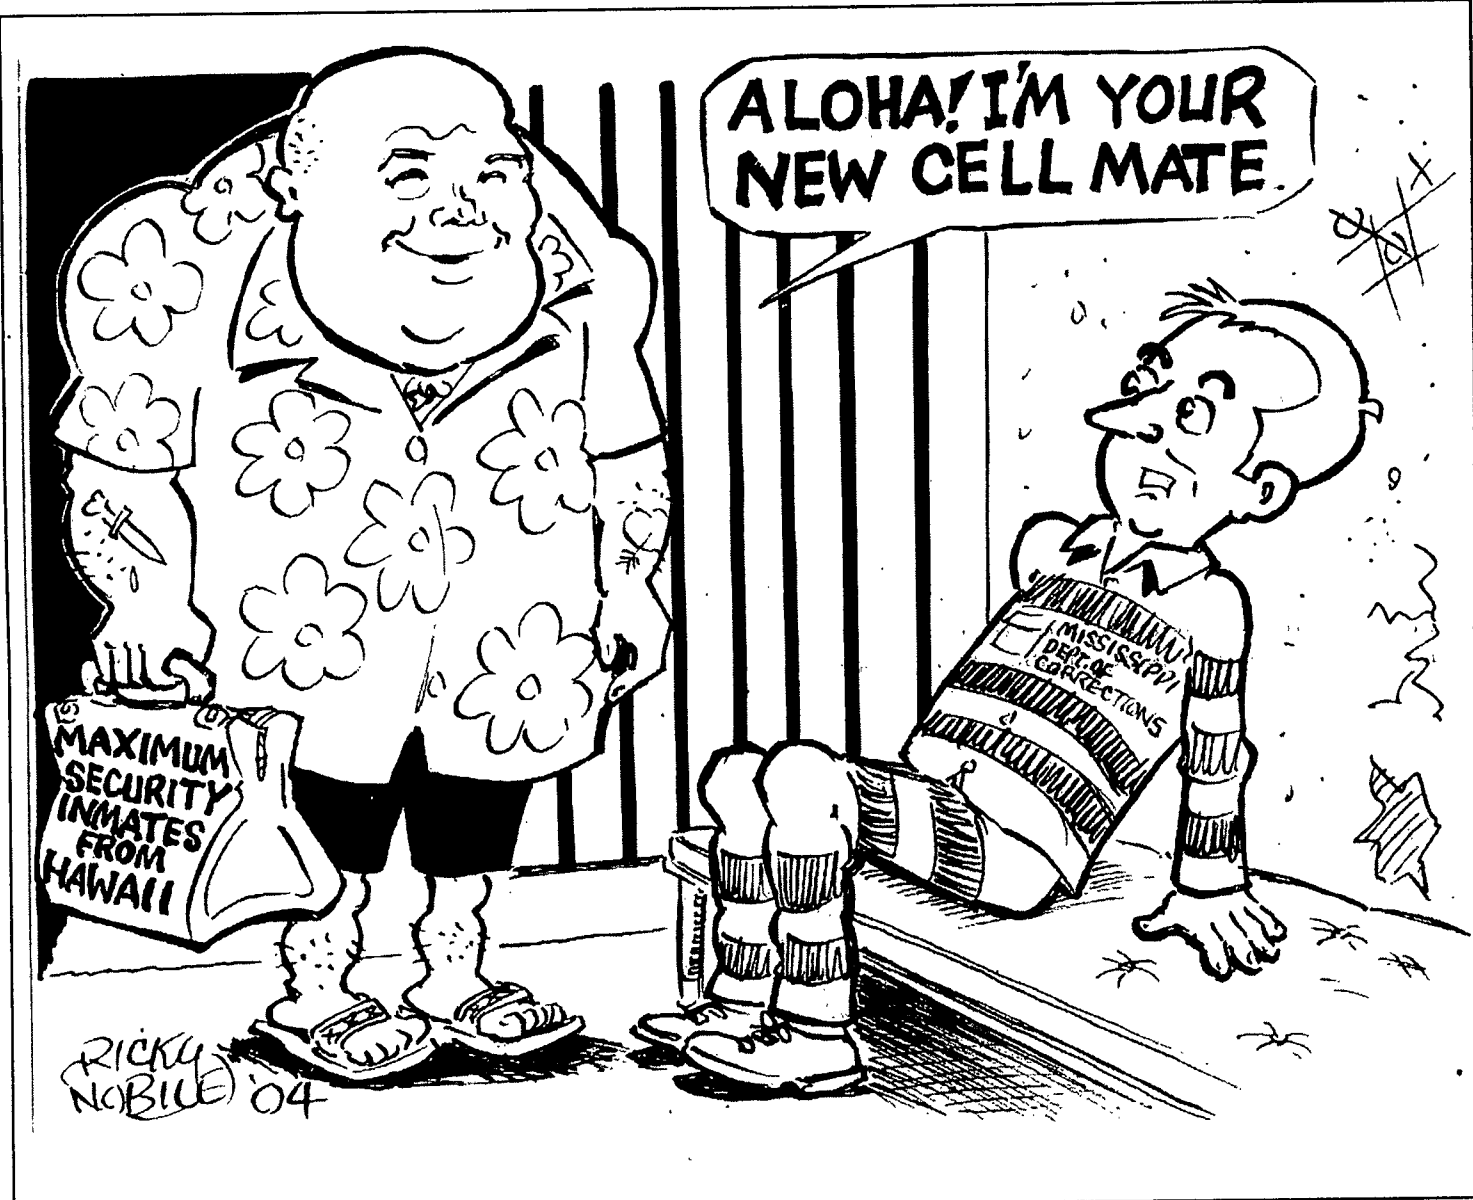

This is why I'll fight to make the tax cuts we've enacted, not just a temporary fleeting relief, but a permanent reimbursement for you each year.

Jobs: Ford Motor Company once had a slogan: "Quality is Job 1." Well, in Mississippi today "Jobs are Job 1." Our new governor, Haley Barbour, has made it clear that bringing new jobs to the state is his top priority, and I'm working closely with our state's leadership to accomplish this goal.

In fact, Mississippi already has a head start in the quest for jobs. President Bush outlined an initiative that taps the resources of our nation's community colleges to

MDOT supports scenic byways

Letter to the Editor
What better way to preserve our beautiful state than to establish a Scenic Byways program in Mississippi.

The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) fully supports this program and has worked with many organizations across this state to ensure its success.

This program, which was established by the Mississippi Legislature during the 2002 regular session, is administered by MDOT. The bill that was passed (Senate Bill 2098) specifically states that eminent domain shall not be used to obtain property for a designated state Scenic byway.

The Legislature must determine -- by passing legislation -- if a proposed scenic byway will receive designation as a state scenic byway. Once that is determined, the state scenic byway may apply for Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) scenic byways program discretionary funds. If such funds are made available, this will allow for an area of the state to promote and market themselves to tourists.

A wonderful example of a successful national scenic byway is the Natchez Trace. The Natchez Trace is a treasure to our citizens, and it attracts tourists from around the country.

Those tourists in turn spend money in Mississippi, bringing revenues to our great state. Simply put, scenic byways are federally funded, but pump money right back into the community. It's a win-win situation.

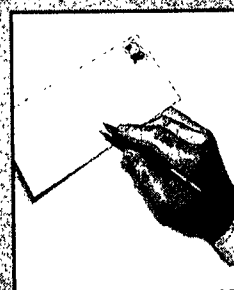

I would like to personally thank Jody Compretta, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce president, for his hard work as a member of the Mississippi Scenic Byways program. MDOT believes Jody is serving his community well by offering them opportunities to promote their area of the state through scenic byways. We thank Jody for a job well done.

Sincerely,
Larry L. "Butch" Brown
MDOT Executive Director

Vandals wreck local woman's car

To Whom It May Concern:

I hope you enjoyed vandalizing cars on Sunday night.

You obviously enjoy making life miserable for other people and have no respect for other people's property.

You smashed the window in my mother's car, kicked in the trunk, punched in the trunk a lock, ruined the radio, etc....

I wish I knew who you were and where you lived so I could do the same to your car, just so you would understand what it feels like to be vandalized.

You obviously enjoy hurting people you don't even know! My mom never did anything to deserve this!

Sure she has insurance but it's difficult to come up with extra money for a deductible when you live

Bay women recognized at national conference of the Association for Career and Technical Educators

Local residents, Jane Lamb and Pamela Naylor, were recently honored for distinguished national educational leadership at the national conference of the Association for Career and Technical Educators in Orlando, Fla.

Lamb has led the ACTE National Awards Committee for three years. This prestigious group of six people determines such honors as National Teacher of the Year, National Educational Leader of the Year, National New Teacher of the Year and six other national business and industry awards.

Lamb was a 2000 Regional Teacher of the Year and National Teacher of the Year Finalist, chosen from a field of hundreds of educators representing Mississippi, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Florida and New Mexico.

She has served as 2001 President of Mississippi Career and Technical Educators, Executive Secretary of Mississippi Marketing Educators, National Marketing Education National Board Member and National Marketing Education Conference Director.

Most recently, Lamb was chosen as Mississippi's State Director's Teacher of the Year and Mississippi's ACTE Educator of the Year. cational level and to bring that honor home to Bay St. Louis. I am dedicated to improving the local programs to bring them in line with the needs of business and industry and to truly help make our students ready for the global workplace they are about to enter."

Naylor, who recently moved to Bay St. Louis, was recently chosen to chair the National ACTE Professional Development Committee.

This committee is charged with the development and implementation of training to increase the effectiveness of educators

Naylor loves living in Bay St. Louis as says, "I adore being on the coast and cannot imagine living anywhere else. I plan on bringing many more honors to my new home of Mississippi!"

Supervisor meeting 'relatively quiet'

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Last week's meeting of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors was relatively quiet, with no major issues being resolved.

Paul Seckso, representing the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department, asked supervisors to consider donating land to the department, preferably, along Hwy. 603 to build a new station. Seckso said a location along Hwy. 603, which would move the department out of the flood zone, would help the county move to a lower rating for fire insurance in the district. The district was recently rated as an 8.

Besides the new location Seckso also asked that supervisors give their approval for one full time paid employee, which, he said would also be a requirement to further lower the fire insurance rating. Supervisors took no action on the requests.

In other business:

• Mike Craft of the Mississippi Employment Service Commission told supervisors that without additional state funding the office on Longfellow Road may have to cut back on hours of operation. The office is now open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Supervisors agreed to draft a written request to both the governor and state representatives for additional funding. Veterans services would not be decreased said Craft.

• Supervisors set a $250 rental fee for the Hancock County Civic Center, effective immediately, including already scheduled events. A $100 refundable cleanup fee will also be required.

• Commissioner Bob Fricke was reappointed to the board of the Hancock County Water and Sewer District.

• Architect Ed Wikoff, who recently completed work on the Hancock County Courthouse, said he hopes to use $312,500 in grant funds for additional work on the building, including plaster work, replacement of floors and replacement of windows.

• Eddie Danzey and Larry Peterson asked supervisors to join with them in pooling grant dollars to fund a walking track at East Hancock Elementary School. Supervisors have pledged grant funds to a walking track at the Kiln Branch of the Hancock County Library. They will be looking at ways to help East Hancock.

• The county will add an additional four covered stalls this year to the Farmer's Market on Longfellow Ave. The work will be done in-house for a total cost between $7,000 to $8,000. Additional stalls will be added as funds permit.

• Supervisors accepted a low bid of $122,590 for work on Joe's Bayou Bridge. Work should take between 60 to 120 days, said county engineer Jeff Clemens.

• Supervisors will funnel balances from three completed projects, the Napoleon Boat Launch, with a balance of $23,597, the Clermont Harbor Pier, with a balance of $6,000, and the Dunbar Avenue Pier, with a balance of $19,000, into other projects which could include improvements to the Pearlinton Pier and boat launch and road improvements to the road to the Napoleon Boat Launch.

• Supervisors said they will ask McLeod Park officials to use funds from the park store to fund additional RV sites. Grant funds the county had hoped to use for the project will not be available.

Of course, it's not like she uses her car a lot since my step-father is on Hospice Care and my mom cannot leave him alone unless she CAN make arrangements for someone to stay with him.

Your life must be pretty pathetic for you to think vandalizing cars is a recreational sport. It certainly could not have been beneficial for you to do this except you and your loser friends think it is fun to take your aggressions out on innocent people.

GET A LIFE AND FIND SOMETHING constructive to do with your life instead of making other people's miserable.

teach skills and trades Americans need for new and better jobs. As you know, Mississippi already has one of the nation's most extensive community college networks, and we're using them to train and retrain workers.

The President's initiative will ensure this continues and expands, and it's something on which Mississippi can especially capitalize, using it to compete for new jobs.

Energy and Highways: I'll work hard for a good energy bill as well as a highway bill this year. We must shed our country's dependence on foreign oil. Being beholden to politically fickle nations in the Middle East and South America is dangerous to our national security and to our economy.

The current energy bill before Congress is unacceptable, laden with unnecessary spending and unrelated inserts. We must improve it. A good energy policy must be balanced, tapping America's own abundant domestic energy resources while at the same time striving for more energy efficiency.

A highway bill is equally important to sustain long-term job growth. Job creation depends on good roads, airports, bridges and railways. In Mississippi we have some major transportation goals including the construction of three new interstates - I-69 through the Delta, I-22 through Northeast Mississippi, Tupelo and onto Birmingham, I-85 from Meridian to Montgomery, airport upgrades and the relocation of various railroad lines to ensure safer, more efficient transport of people and goods.

Winning the War on Terror: Mississippians understand that energy policy, tax cuts, new jobs and new highways mean little if our economy, our personal safety and overall national security are held hostage by terrorists.

I'll continue efforts to stop dangerous wartime base closure attempts which threaten local economies and our military's readiness.

If we must close bases, overseas facilities in Western Europe left over from the Cold War should be first on the list instead of our valuable domestic bases which unlike those in Europe enjoy strong local support.

I also want to see our troops rotated as soon as possible, especially our National Guard and Reserve personnel. Thousands of Mississippi Guard and Reserve personnel have taken part in Operation Iraqi Freedom, and with employers and families waiting, they shouldn't be in Iraq a day longer than necessary.

Tax cuts, jobs, energy independence, new highways and protecting America - these aren't goals defined by the President, beltway insiders or election year focus groups.

The American people defined these issues, and they demand and deserve substantive, bipartisan measures on these important needs regardless of election year politics.

Gulf Coast and the nation still facing blood shortages

Bay High hosting blood drive this Tuesday

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Blood collections in our region began to drop off by the second week of December due to the holidays and an early flu season. On January 5th the Alabama and Central Gulf Coast Region of the American Red Cross issued an emergency appeal for blood donors due to critically low supplies of blood in our area. The American Red Cross joined forces on Jan. 11 with the American Association of Blood Banks, America's Blood Centers and the Department of Health and Services to issue a nationwide alert for blood donors. Unfortunately, supplies are still critically low and severe weather in many parts of the country have made matters even worse. The Alabama and Central Gulf Coast Region is on its own when it comes to keeping our hospitals supplied since blood supplies in other parts of the country are also low due to weather problems. "We cannot count on other Red Cross regions to help us right now when they are canceling blood drives every day due to ice and snow storms", commented Liz Gaulke, Senior Account Manager with the American Red Cross. Currently, supplies of type O Positive, B Positive, B Negative and O Negative are at less than a 1/4 day supply in our region.

On Tuesday, February 3rd Bay High School and the American Red Cross will team up to host a blood drive from 9:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. in the school Auditorium on Blue Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis. The blood drive is being hosted by the SADD Club and is open to the community. Everyone who donates blood will receive an "I Give Blood" t-shirt as a thank you for giving their precious gift.

There is an 85% chance that you, a family member, or someone you love will need blood in an emergency. That blood needs to be ready, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. If you wait until the emergency occurs, it's too late. The Red Cross needs several days to safely collect, test and process blood before it is ready for transfusion. Blood is needed not only for accident or trauma victims but also for those suffering from other illnesses such as cancer, leukemia, and sickle cell disease. Surgery patients and mothers delivering babies as well as the Neonatal ICU units must also depend on an adequate blood supply at all times.

Anyone in good health, at least 17 years old and weighing 110 pounds or more can help ease the shortages by donating the gift of life now. Donors must wait at least 56 days between donations and should not give blood if they are taking antibiotics.

Corps -- environment

feared seeing wetlands filled in little by little, with the Corps bending over backwards to make a permit work for a developer.

"We all want business, but need to protect our natural resources," said DeBardeleben. "We need to stand up and say no, go somewhere else."

Randal Abrams said his main concern was development's impact on pristine wetlands, with these areas being exchanged in the mitigation process with impacted or degraded wetlands. Lawrence Dees of Long Beach said the Corps should not be concerned with only keeping "balances" with the mitigation process. He also criticized the practice of after the fact permits.

On the other side of the issue Jim Manness said it was an American right to be able to use private property as the owner sees fit and that private property rights should be remembered when issuing decisions.

Attorney Teri Wyly representing the interests of the Harrison County Development Commission, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission urged the Corps to take into full account the economic repercussions to an area before making any decision on large development and to insure that the permitting process allow the applicant a voice in assessing the long term effects of projects. The positive effects of large scale development must also be recognized, she said, and be balanced with conservation efforts.

Thriffley said he was concerned with the levels of water tables because the city had drilled to an aquifer and found no water, leaving them with no option but to drill further to complete a well. He said that he was concerned that tremors felt all over parts of Hancock and Harrison County last week could be a result of aquifers being raided to the point of collapse. He asked the Corps to take an active role in helping to find out what caused ground and air tremors on Jan. 19.

Keyser said that about 4,000 permit applications are handled by he and about 15 co-workers each year.

"A lot of folks feel we should deny every permit ... environmentalists think we give out permits without even looking at them and developers probably think I am the tightest S. O. B. who ever lived," Keyser said. "The truth is probably somewhere in between and if both sides are mad then we are probably where we should be."

"If there is no economic growth it will bring the county to its knees and if there is no environmental stewardship that will also bring the county to its knees. We have to have both. Part of the reason I am here is to help you understand how we can begin to live up to our responsibilities of environmental stewardship."

Magness presented the EIS as an analytical tool to accurately access the cumulative effects of large scale development on the coast environment both historically and for the next 20 years. Without such a tool to help us head in a direction toward environmental stewardship, the future for the coastal environment could be grim, Magness said.

Faked -- kidnapping

Investigator John Favaloro have been investigating the case on the local level, in addition to assistance from the New Orleans Police Department.

Cuevas said enough evidence was gathered to secure an arrest warrant in January for Lamia.

Initially, Cuevas said, "The suspect reported that she was kidnapped near the Harrah's Casino in New Orleans, then driven in her 2002 Chevy Cavalier by a male, who stopped on Highway 90, poured lighter fuel on the vehicle's interior and her clothing. (Lamia said she) then ran from the vehicle before it was torched.

"She (claimed she) was pushed down in the ditch by the kidnapper, who held a gun to her head and said he would shoot her if she moved. A small black vehicle then picked up her alleged attacker and left the scene. A motorist stopped and dialed 911 to notify the sheriff's department of the vehicle burning," Cuevas said.

Lamia later filed a claim on her motorist's insurance.

Investigators say that Lamia fabricated the entire event.

Adam said, "This was a very hard case to prove and through the working together of local, state and New Orleans departments, we were able to secure enough evidence for the arrest to be made."

The riverine and jungle training range will be used for live fire training and water to land SRTA fire training from the East Pearl River and Mikes River into the range and for land to land SRTA fire wholly inside the range perimeter. SRTA up to 0.50 caliber will be conducted. SRTA is a plastic, non-lead, non-explosive projectile with a limited flight profile.

Other activities proposed for the training area are land patrolling and reconnaissance by foot and passenger vehicles; equipment testing and evaluation, immediate action drills; communications drills, use of maritime unmanned aerial vehicles, unmanned riverine observation craft, High Mobility Multi-purpose Wheeled Vehicles, and insertions and extraction's via helicopter.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has given their approval to the proposed facility only with the following stipulations:

That 160 residential dwellings be built in Hancock County by the Navy to house staff and personnel to make up for tax dollars that will be lost when the 5,200 acres of mostly privately owned property becomes Navy property; that operations are not conducted during funerals at one of the many private and public cemeteries still maintained in the area; that hunting still be allowed in the area according to state regulations; that access to the Pearl River not be restricted except in rare instances when a training exercise may make it necessary to temporarily close the thoroughfare; and that a fence be put up on the north and east boundary of the facility.

It is unclear as to whether the Navy has agreed to these stipulations.

The Draft Environmental Impact Statement on the project is available for review at the Bay St. Louis branch of the Hancock County Public Library and at the St. Tammany Parish Library in Slidell. Copies of the draft have been sent to local officials and other interested parties.

Speakers will be limited to three minutes at the hearings.

Written statements may be submitted at the hearings or faxed or mailed to: SBT-22 Range EIS, c/o Commanding Officer Southern Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, P.O. Box 190010, North Charleston, S.C. 29419-9010, Attn. Code ES12/RD.

PRCC branch campus will fulfill public, private quest

SPECIAL TO THE ECHO

The Pearl River Community College Board of Trustees has approved a plan to establish a branch campus in Hancock County. This is the result of one year of planning and a vision that has spanned a decade.

The effort came together when the Hancock County Board of Supervisors asked the Hancock Chamber's Education Committee, led by Dr. Sherry Ponder, to work with officials at PRCC to develop a plan of action to provide greater access to post high school learning for area residents. "This effort is critical to our community because education leads to economic development," said Dr. Ponder.

This effort has been an initiative of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, elected officials of Waveland and Bay St. Louis, the Hancock Chamber's Education Committee, the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission, Stennis Space Center's (SSC) Executive Council and the Center for Higher Learning, and PRCC.

"The Board of Supervisors should be commended for their leadership and vision to bring the public and private sector together to work toward this important common goal," said Jody Compretta, president of the Hancock Chamber.

Through a series of meetings and workshops, discussions have centered around methods that could be used to provide greater access to post high school education for all citizens of Hancock County to include higher education, community education and workforce development, with specific emphasis on Stennis Space Center.

Recently, the Executive Council of Stennis Space Center (SSC) released a corporate strategic plan, which calls for doubling the number of personnel working at SSC by 2010. This would add another 4,500 jobs to the marketplace.

"We want to be sure that the workforce of Hancock County is prepared to take full advantage of growth opportunities we are anticipating for our area," said Rocky Pullman, President of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The education vision for Hancock County will create two opportunities for citizens. Through the Center of Higher Learning at Stennis Space Center, PRCC is now able to expand the undergraduate courses currently offered at SSC to include a full associates degree and support for technical training to on-site agencies. Currently, the workforce at SSC can access academic activities through USM, MSU, UNO and PRCC.

Cleon Lacefield of Lockheed Martin, in his role as Chairman of the SSC Executive Council's Quality of Life Committee, with support from the SSC's Center of Higher Learning led the effort to forge this plan with PRCC.

The plan is still in formation and is expected to provide the current workforce at SSC with forward mobility. The plan also includes providing greater access to educational opportunities for all residents of Hancock County meaning, on and off site students will be able to access the courses offered.

The second phase of the educational vision for Hancock County includes the establishment of a "regional education center," located in a high traffic and centrally located facility in Hancock County.

Discussions of possible locations have included the former Wal-Mart building, which was recently purchased by a California developer. The developer is considering mixed-use options for the facility, which could include public and private tenants.

When the plans are complete, the public will be informed on how to take advantage of these new and expanded educational opportunities in Hancock County.

SSC gets revenge on Pass; Bay sweeps Gautier

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

On Friday, January 30, the score was evened between the Pass Christian Pirates and the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws across the bridge in the Pass.

SSC exacted some revenge for an earlier loss with a 52-44 division win that sent the Rocks record to 19-5 and 8-2. Pass Christian, Gautier and SSC are in a three-way tie for first place in Division 8 Class 4A. Gautier entered the three-way tie with a 40-31 loss to the Bay High Tigers on Friday.

The Rocks and the Pirates played their usual hard fought rivalry before a strong crowd that got their money's worth. SSC opened the scoring with a Tony Silva layup. It wasn't long before Billy Crawford tied the game at 2-2 for the Pirates.

Rob Murray nailed a three-pointer for SSC to give the Rocks their biggest lead of the opening quarter at 7-3 with 4:30 left. However, the Pirates fought back for a 14-13 lead at the end of the period when Crawford sank a buzzer beater from behind the arc.

Darius Acker started the Rocks off right with a trey to open the second period and give SSC a 16-14 lead. The teams battled basket-for-basket the remainder of the half until Roscoe Forch sank a buzzer beater from three-point land to end the half and give the Pirates the 29-26 lead at the break.

Pass Christian head coach Buddy Kennedy stated, "The players from both teams are very familiar with each other. Both teams have tremendous respect for each other. This is always a hard fought game between the two schools. The race in the division is still wide open. We have Gautier coming to our gym next week. Plus, we still have to travel to East Central and Bay High. SSC has some tough contests ahead of them, as well. This year, our district has four teams that deserve to be in the playoffs."

Pass Christian jumped out to a quick seven point lead 33-26 behind two baskets from Forch and Brandon Miller. However, Silva and Murray cut the lead to a point 33-32 with a 6-0 run for the Rocks. Silva scored four points in the run. SSC ended the third period with a 7-2 run to take a 39-37 lead heading into the final stanza. Acker scored five of the seven points.

The fourth quarter came down to free throws and SSC was 9-for-11 at the charity stripe to seal the 52-44 win.

SSC head coach Jay Ladner commented, "The SSC/Pass series has been a great rivalry over the years. There are always great crowds like tonight who get their money's worth in the games. It is always a hard fought game and tonight was no exception. Now, there is a three-way tie for the No. 1 seed in the tournament. We have Gautier coming to our gymnasium on Tuesday for a huge division game. It is imperative that we take care of business at home. This division reminds me of the SEC in college."

"It is so difficult to win on the road that it is extremely important to win at home. This division race will ultimately come down to who can put everything together during the division tournament week. It is very important that we continue to improve. This division has four teams that deserve to go to the playoffs."

SSC was led by Darius Acker with 17 points followed by Rob Murray with 16 points and Tony Silva with 9 points.

The Bay High Tigers forced the three-way tie in Division 8 Class 4A with a 40-31 victory on the road against the Gautier Gators. The win gave the Tigers a sweep against the highly-touted Gators during the season.

Marquez Singleton and Lorenzo Lewis each scored 12 points to lead Bay High while Javon Williams added 9 points and 8 rebounds. The score was tied 13-13 at halftime following a 11-4 lead by Gautier after the first period.

In high school basketball action on Tuesday, January 27, the Bay High Tigers swept a pair of games from the Vancleave Bulldogs in Bay St. Louis. The Lady Tigers defeated the Lady Bulldogs 76-43 while the boys team soundly handled Vancleave 75-39.

In the girls game, Destiny Porter scored 23 points and yanked down 9 boards for Bay High followed by Felicia Thomas with 20 points.

Kendra Reed scored a double-double with 18 points and 15 rebounds in the win. The Lady Tigers improved to 18-4 overall and remained undefeated in Division 8 Class 4A with 7-0 record.

In the boys game, the Tigers were led by Marquez Singleton's 27 points, 4 rebounds and 4 assists in the 75-39 win. Javon Williams added 15 points and 6 rebounds followed by George Easley's 14 points and 5 assists. Joseph Sims rounded out the double-digit scorers for Bay High with 10 points.

The Admirals (23-1) handed the Pass Christian Pirates a 71-54 loss behind Prep All-American Henry Salter's double-double of 25 points and 18 rebounds. Duran Eckford scored 15 points and Carlos Wright added 9 points and 10 assists.

The Hancock Lady Hawks (18-3) recorded a 65-55 win over Moss Point on Tuesday. Brooke Necaise led Hancock with 21 points and 4 rebounds followed by Ashley Boehnel with 15 points, 4 assists and 4 steals. Courtney Craft tallied 12 points and 4 assists in the win.

Super Bowl XXXVIII

How the New England Patriots (16-2) and the Carolina Panthers (14-5) match up

Both teams have veteran coaches, superb players, and will to win

BY DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

WHEN THE PANTHERS HAVE THE BALL

Carolina's offense starts with the run — the Panthers threw just 14 times in their 14-3 win over Philadelphia in the NFC championship game, only three times in the second half. Stephen Davis (48) is one of the league's best power backs and should be healthy after playing the last two games with a pulled thigh muscle. DeShaun Foster (20) filled in ably and gives the Panthers outside speed. Quarterback Jake Delhomme (17) was a little-used backup for six years in New Orleans, but in his first season as a starter has engineered seven game-winning drives in the fourth quarter or overtime. His primary receivers are Steve Smith (85) and Muhsin Muhammad (87) with 35-year-old Ricky Proehl (81) the third wideout. Smith is the deep threat and Muhammad is considered one of the best blocking wide receivers in the NFL while Proehl has Super Bowl experience with the Rams.

New England used just two down linemen for much of its win over Indianapolis — Ted Washington (92), the run stopper, and Richard Seymour (93), one of the best young linemen in the league. Typical of the Patriots, Jarvis Green (97) had three sacks in that game as a third-down plug-in after having just 4 1/2 in two seasons. Rookies Ty Warren (94) and Dan Klecko (90) may play more this week to beef up the run defense.

The key to the New

Carolina Panthers Quarterback Jake Delhomme, of Breaux Bridge, La.

England defense is deception. They sometimes have most of their front seven stand near the line of scrimmage to disguise who's a lineman and who's not. Willie McGinest (55), Tedy Bruschi (54), Mike Vrabel (50) and Roman Phifer (95) all have played as ends and linebackers during their careers. McGinest and Bruschi have had outstanding seasons, although Bruschi's status is in question because of a calf injury.

They go against an experienced Carolina offensive line centered by Jeff Mitchell (60), who won a Super Bowl ring with Baltimore three seasons ago. Rookie right tackle Kevin Gross (69) has been solid and left tackle Todd Steussie (75) was a Pro Bowler during his time with Minnesota.

Ty Law (24), who had three interceptions in the NFC title game, will probably be on Smith most of the day. Law and strong safety Rodney Harrison (37) make the New England secondary one of the best in the league. Rookie safeties Eugene Wilson (26) and Asante Samuel (22) have matured as the season has gone on and Tyrone Poole (38), who began his career with the Panthers, has had a solid season.

WHEN THE PATRIOTS HAVE THE BALL

Quarterback Tom Brady (12) was the MVP of the 2002 Super Bowl. A former sixth-round draft pick, he's efficient without being spectacular — his record is 39-12. The same can be said for the running game — Antowain Smith (32) and Kevin Faulk (33) combined for 1,280 yards in the regular season and Smith rushed for 100 yards against the Colts in the AFC championship.

Brady often uses the short-passing game in place of the run and Faulk had 48 catches, second on the team. Because of injuries to David Patten, out for the season, and Troy Brown (80) the Patriots went often to second-year men Deion Branch (83) and David Givens (87) as well as tight ends Daniel Graham (82) and Christian Fauria (88). Rookie Bethel Johnson (81) is the deep threat and also an outstanding return man.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The best known special teamer in this game is New England kicker Adam Vinatieri (4), whose 48-yard field goal won the Super Bowl for the Patriots on the final play two years ago. He has made numerous clutch kicks in his career, including one from 46 yards in 4-degree temperatures to beat Tennessee in New England's first playoff game.

Brown has been one of the NFL's premier punt returners for nearly a decade and Johnson, one of six rookies who plays a lot for New England, returned one kickoff for a TD and had two more long ones to set up scores. Punter Ken Walter (13) is average.

Carolina kicker Jon Kasay (4) is the only remaining player from Carolina's expansion team in 1995. He missed most of the 2000 and 2002 seasons with injuries and had to win back his job in training camp. He made 32 of 38 field goals this season and had four game-winning kicks, three from 47 yards or more.

Punter Todd Sauerbrun (10) led the NFC with a 44.6 average and made the Pro Bowl, but had three punts blocked in the regular season.

Steve Smith, who made the Pro Bowl as a return man two years ago in his rookie season, has been the Panthers' primary punt returner. Rod Smart (32), "He Hate Me" of XFL fame, returns kickoffs and had a 100-yard return for a TD against New Orleans.

COACHING

New England's Bill Belichick was coach of the year and is generally regarded as one of the NFL's two or three best. He's considered especially tough to beat with two weeks to prepare. This is his fifth Super Bowl — he was head coach of the Patriots in their victory two years ago and was on the winning side as defensive coordinator of the New York Giants in 1987 and 1991.

Carolina's John Fox has been to one Super Bowl — also with the Giants as defensive coordinator. That was in 2001, when New York lost to Baltimore. He took over a team that was 1-15 two years ago, got them to 7-9 last season, and this year won the NFC South at 11-5. Then they beat Dallas at home and St. Louis and Philadelphia on the road to get to the Super Bowl.

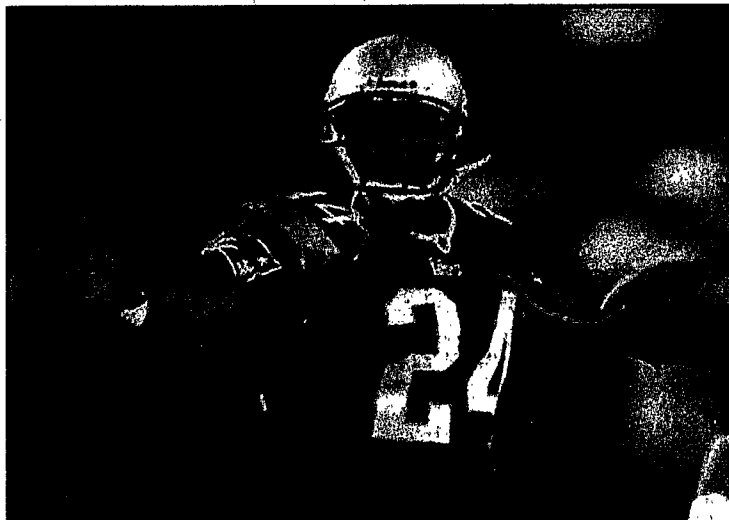

Several assistants also are among the elite. New England coordinators Charlie Weiss (offense) and Romeo Crennel (defense) were among those at the top of the lists for vacant head coaching jobs, but were bypassed by teams wanting to hire new coaches before the Super Bowl. Carolina offensive coordinator Dan Henning has been a head coach with Atlanta and San Diego and the offensive coordinator on two of Joe Gibbs' Super Bowl winners in Washington two decades ago.

INTANGIBLES

The Panthers, underdogs by a touchdown, say they are approaching the game with nothing to lose. That's what the Patriots did against St. Louis two years ago, when they were two-touchdown underdogs and won 20-17. Carolina also has been motivated by linebacker Mark Fields and linebackers coach Sam Mills, both of whom are fighting cancer.

Both teams have a knack for winning close games — Carolina has won seven games by three points or less, four in overtime. New England has won 14 straight, the only team to do that in a single season since the 1972 Miami Dolphins finished 17-0. Like the Panthers, they rarely blow anyone out — they won nine games by eight points or less.

New England Patriots CB Ty Law reacts after his fourth-quarter interception against the Indianapolis Colts to win the AFC Championship last week.

I break a few fingers, and Henry agrees they are broken

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza

I told a story awhile back about Henry, a neighbor, from up the street who nearly cut off my thumb with a chain saw. However, while not too nimble with a chain saw, he was a fairly good doctor and graciously fixed the injured thumb.

The thumb healed very well and Henry moved about a year or so later (I don't think the two events are related). However, while he was still in the neighborhood I had an opportunity to use Henry's medical skills again.

It came about because of our two large dogs.

I had tried to put Heron outside and keep Greta inside. Greta didn't agree with this (she was in heat) and, knocking me to the ground, tried to get out to join Heron. I was unhappy about this. For a few moments there was a lot of noise and arguing, but I managed to convince her how unhappy I was.

When everything settled down, I looked at the hand that I had used to brace myself with when I was thrown to the ground. It was starting to throb. Looking closely, I found both joints in my right index finger were badly dislocated from the fall. Not only was the finger sticking out at an odd angle, it was swelling rapidly.

The dogs had a large water bowl near me on the floor. I filled the bowl with ice and water and put the finger in it to get the swelling and pain down.

This took a bit, but finally, both were subdued sufficiently so I could go a little further.

Bracing myself as best I could, I very carefully straightened the dislocation. Then, gasping from the pain and effort, I sat down.

Lost Communities OF HANCOCK COUNTY

Nona Leo Ward was one of seven children of Sam and Sarah Byrd Strahan. She served the tight knit communities along the Pearl River in West Hancock County as a nurse practitioner attending the sick in their homes without charge because it was the neighborly thing to do.

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

There are probably not too many people who lived along the Pearl River in the southwest corner of Hancock County in the last 60 years who don't have some memory of Nona Leo Ward.

Many, like Supervisor Rocky Pullman, remember that Miss Leo gave them a lot of shots. Miss Leo was a nurse in the area from the mid 1940s when doctors were few and far between.

Many of the communities in the area have since vanished, moved board by board in many cases to new locations to make way for the Stennis Space Center and rocket testing facility which took over a vast area of the county in the early 1960s.

In 1993 a reunion was held for the graduating classes of the Old Logtown School. The school operated from 1907 until 1948, when a new school at the Logtown crossroads replaced the old two story wooden structure. Miss Leo is in a red jacket near the middle of the photograph. nities of Santa Rosa, Gainesville, Napoleon, Westonia, Logtown and other little settlements which dotted the area, disappeared to make way for what Senator John Stennis described to them as progress.

Miss Leo, who says if she lives until May she will be 88, was one of seven children of Sam and Sarah Byrd Strahan, originally from Lumberton, the only one of the seven still living.

Her parents let her siblings name her after their two favorite school teachers. She and husband T.P., now deceased, had two daughters.

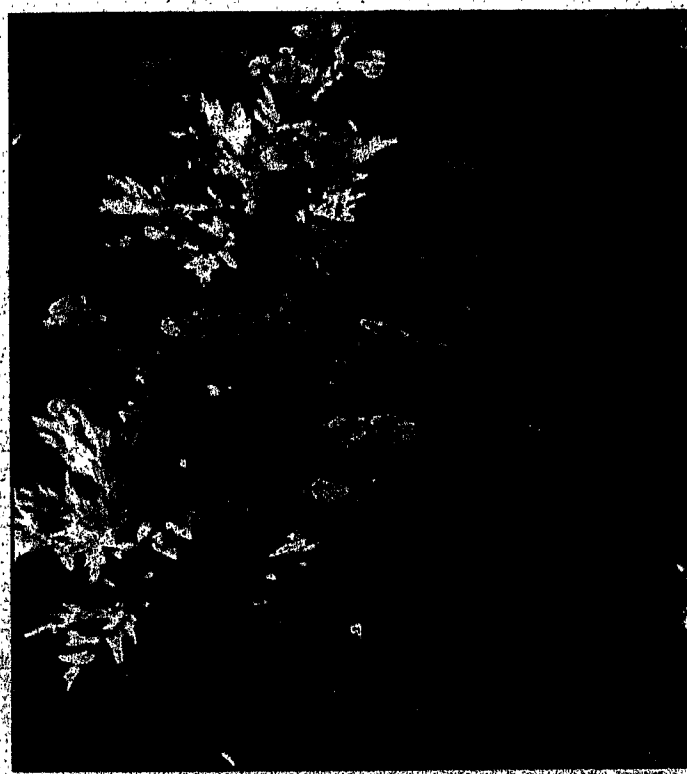

"I wish my sister Helen was still alive," said Miss

Leo. "Her mind was sharp and she could have remembered all the details."

But Miss Leo remembers plenty about what life used to be like in west Hancock County. The family moved

Oriental Limelight captures imagination

If silver foliage is the first thing you think of at the mention to the word artemisia, you haven't seen Oriental Limelight. This introduction by Proven Winners has really captured the imagination of landscape designers everywhere. It is also an incredible plant for mixed baskets and containers.

Known botanically as Artemisia vulgaris, the Oriental Limelight boasts lime green and creamy lemon-yellow variegation on deeply toothed leaves. As you might guess, one of the common names is variegated wormwood or mugwort. It is native to Europe and Northern Africa eastward to Iran and parts of Siberia. It is perennial in zones 3 through 9.

Oriental Limelight, like other artemisias, is in the Aster family and related to other Southern favorites like yarrow and purple coneflowers.

Oriental Limelight will reach 12 to 36 inches in height and works well in full sun to part shade. It has a self-branching, mounding habit and will definitely catch the eyes of visitors. I'm in the group that likes it best with a little mid-afternoon shade protection. Similar to the silver-leaved artemisias, the water requirements are on the low to medium side.

It certainly doesn't need a luxurious, rich soil, but good drainage is necessary. You'll want to work on tight, heavy soil

State Leaders Speak at Navy's Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Event

Capt. Philip Renaud, NAVOCEANO's Commanding Officer, delivered the ceremony's opening remarks and welcomed guest speakers Dr. Gene Young and Mr. C. Daryl Neely, both of Jackson, Miss.

Dr. Young, a professional consultant and motivational speaker, has participated in many civil rights causes and activities, including the March on Washington. He has been featured on numerous national radio and television programs and has been published in national publications, including Time magazine.

Dr. Young focused on the ceremony's theme, "United in Understanding, Defined in Promise and Guided by Hope," sharing stories about his personal experiences of the civil rights movement.

He emphasized Dr. King's message of service to others and quoted excerpts from several of his famous speeches.

"As we remember Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, it should inspire all of us, regardless of color, to do our best," said Dr. Young.

Mr. C. Daryl Neely, a Senior Policy Advisor for Mississippi Governor Haley Barbour, also spoke at the ceremony and introduced Dr. Young. Mr. Neely serves as the Governor's liaison to the Department of Corrections, Department of Public Safety, the Highway Patrol, Bureau of Narcotics, Mississippi Emergency Management Agency and the National Guard. He also advises the Governor on issues of diversity and minority affairs.

Mr. Neely, named one of America's top black Republicans, said that he shared the Governor's gratitude for the men and women who served the Navy at Stennis.

Capt. Renaud called Mr. Young's words inspiring and urged the Command's employees and guests to become active in accomplishing the dream that Dr. King worked diligently to accomplish during his short life.

NAVOCEANO's Equal Employment Opportunity Committee sponsored the event.

Miss Leo -- the healer of Hancock County

from Caesar to Logtown when Miss Leo was a child, after the death of her brother in a hunting accident. Her mother Sarah was heartbroken and wanted to leave the area.

Once in Logtown the family lived in a house in back of the old Logtown school that stood by where the cemetery still stands today.

"I think many of the houses were built by the sawmill," she said.

Father Sam and one of Miss Leo's brothers worked for the Westons at the sawmill in Logtown. She remembers walking to take them meals. There were two mills, a planer mill and a regular mill, she said.

"My daddy worked as a night watchman there for years," she said.

Later, the mill offered to sell her brother any house they owned for $50.

"That was a lot of money back then," she said.

Life in the area revolved around the river.

"There used to be a schooner that would dock and take logs down the river," she said. "One brought in a cat and when my daddy left he brought the cat home."

Later Miss Leo would take the mail boat that docked at Logtown to English Point to catch the train into New Orleans to bring back medicines from Charity Hospital for people in the area. There weren't many cars or even roads for that matter, she said, and everyone walked where they needed to go, or went by boat.

There was a plank walkway through the marsh near what they call Gin Rd., she said, and that made the walk from Pearlington to Logtown shorter when the kids were sent to the store there for groceries.

"I don't guess too many people remember that," she said. "And if we were walking through the woods and met with a man, he would walk us all the way home and make sure we got there OK. You weren't afraid back then and didn't have to worry about people hurting you."

The Strahans bought property off what is now Kelly Road in Pearlington for $5 an acre and became one of the first families in the area.

"You wouldn't believe what Pearlington was like back then," she said. "Just one little dirt road."

The community along the river was a close one. Miss Leo remembers visiting the Murphy's in Napoleon, Lucille and Nancy Bell and spending the night there. The girls all attended school together at Logtown. She remembers a school picture she used to have where her brother Stanley and his friend T.A. Dean ran from one side of the group to the other and appeared in the picture at both ends. Her mother kept her home an extra year because her little sister cried when she left for school and back then parents didn't have to send their children to school till they wanted to, she said.

The Strahans attended the First Baptist Church in Logtown. Many Sundays they walked up to the old fire tower to have a picnic lunch under the Oak trees after church, she said. "Mother was always planning things and every Sunday she took us on a walk through the woods to look for wild flowers."

"I guess God has blessed me the way he has because I helped people, but I can't do it too much anymore."

Nona Leo Ward

One summer the family lived at the old Baldwin Plantation where Sam worked as a caretaker. Miss Leo remembers the beautiful grounds, wrap around porches, stained glass windows and paintings on the walls. But she also remembers the mosquitoes.

"They were so bad we couldn't stand it," she said. "And someone had burned the underneath of the raised house."

To get groceries the family had to cross a bayou and walk through a field of cows. One time she remembers being chased up a tree with her sisters.

Things were pretty much the same all up and down the river, Miss Leo said. People didn't have much and made their own fun. Kids played hopscotch or jump rope, played house with broken dishes, had taffy pulls and worked to help their parents with the chores.

"I was a tomboy," she said. "And I loved to fish."

After Miss Leo graduated from school in 1930 she trained to be a nurse in Hattiesburg and served for a time as head nurse at Hattiesburg General. When husband T.P. returned from the war, the couple lived for a couple of years in Maryland, where she worked at Hartford

Memorial until a difficult pregnancy forced her to bed. When her daughter was 3-months-old she told T.P. she had had enough of the cold east coast. I said, "I'm going home and you can come with me if you want."

That was 1947 and the middle of the winter and when the family arrived in Mississippi the Camellias were in bloom and T.P. said this is where we are going to live.

Miss Leo served in many nursing positions over the years at Slidell Memorial, on the original Board of Directors of Hancock General on Dunbar Avenue and later at Gulf Haven Nursing Home. And during all the years since returning home she worked throughout the community.

"When we first returned home there were only two or three doctors," she said.

Doctors would send instructions and medicines and shots, or Miss Leo would go into New Orleans to get the needed medications and take them to the homes where people needed her.

She bathed the elderly, visited the sick, went when someone died unexpectedly wherever she was needed.

"I don't guess there were too many homes I didn't go to," she said. "I guess I was more or less a practitioner." She remembers caring for Lillie Sams and her children. And she did it all on her own time for free.

"I did it as a neighbor you know. I didn't charge," she said. "I guess God has blessed me the way he has because I helped people, but I can't do it too much anymore."

"I thought it was really a pretty boring life I guess," said Miss Leo. "You don't really think about all the stories until someone asks you."

Stella came in just as I sat down.

She evidently had not had a great day. She wanted to know why Heron was outside, why was Gretal howling in the garage and finally, what was the dirty dog dish doing on the counter? I looked at her and raised my finger for her to see.

"I hurt my finger."

However, the ice had taken the swelling down and, after my pulling the joints straight, the finger looked normal. Stella looked at the finger without touching it.

"So?"

I felt a little foolish holding my finger in the air and pulled it back down to my lap.

"I'm serious, Stella. I broke it."

"If you really broke it, Paul, go see a doctor," she said exasperatingly and turned away and started putting her packages away. Of course, when she put it that way, there was only one thing to do. I refused to go see a doctor, and it was very quiet around the house the rest of the day.

The next morning, I woke up with the finger throbbing. I put on a pair of clean white shorts and despite it being only six in the morning, walked up the street to ring the bell at Henry's door. When he opened it, he was in his pajamas.

I explained about my finger and the two of us walked around the back to his brick patio and sat down on Bobby Ruth's filigree wrought iron chairs. They were as uncomfortable in my thin white shorts as they looked. I was pleased with the knowledge that the dew must be going right through Henry's thinner pajamas and that he was probably more uncomfortable than me.

"Paul," he said, looking at my finger, "How did you do this?"

"I fell."

"Stella push you?"

"No, why should she push me?"

"Do you want some coffee? I have to look something up and it may take some time."

I said OK, and he went inside, brought out a cup of tepid instant coffee, and then went back in. I drank some of the terrible coffee and waited, still uncomfortable. I realized, Henry had outwitted me and had left me sitting alone on Bobby Ruth's wet wrought iron chairs. After a few minutes, he came out and sitting beside me, began probing my finger again. I gave a yelp; he ignored me. He kept comparing it to the same finger on the other hand and shaking his head.

"Paul, you've broken this finger. It's broken pretty bad. Very bad, in fact. You are going to have to see a doctor."

"Henry, listen to me carefully. I know it's broken. I also know it's broken very bad. What I don't know is what happened to the doctor that used to live here."

"Well, the doctor who now lives here specializes in chain saw injuries. What I'm looking at here is something more sophisticated, something someone, although you won't admit it, probably Stella, has done with a large blunt instrument." He pushed again at the finger. I yelled. He looked at it some more.

"Frankly, this is out of my league. I'm going to give you the name of a friend in Gulfport who is an expert at fixing these kind of injuries. Call him up as soon as you can and have him look at this. Tell him I sent you."

that you have to chisel or use a pickaxe to break apart. In other words, it is a tough, durable plant, but it's necessary to work the soil and add a little organic matter.

Space plants 12 to 18 inches apart and water thoroughly after planting. Once established, water infrequently but deeply when required. Use only a thin layer of mulch to conserve moisture and keep the soil temperature moderate.

The luxurious-looking leaves cause some gardeners to get off-track a little when it comes to cultural practices. Treat it like you would the silver-leafed Powis Castle; once it becomes a little woody and perhaps spindly, cut it back to rejuvenate growth and create a bushier appearance.

Dividing can be done in the fall or early spring, the latter being my favorite. It is also easy to propagate by cutting.

You can fire up the landscape or containers when you start selecting companion plants for the Oriental Limelight. Showy if not gaudy combinations can be made with blues and violets from petunias like Supertunia, or the new Suncatcher from BallFlora Plant.

Grow Oriental Limelight with the same blue violet color of perennial verbenas like Babylon, Tapien or Mississippi Medallion award-winning Biloxi Blue.

Other great flower partners are gomphrena and salvias like Victoria Blue or Indigo Spires. Don't be afraid to try the Oriental Limelight in rock gardens or combine with other colorful-foliaged plants like Purple Heart and Purple Knight alternanthera.

There is not a better time in history to be a gardener. You never know what will be unloaded at the garden center the day you arrive. If you are lucky this spring, it might even be the Oriental Limelight artemisia.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BERENICE---DAUGHTER OF KING HEROD!

THE ELDEST DAUGHTER OF HEROD AGRIPPA SEEMS TO HAVE DONE HER PART IN KEEPING ALIVE THE TRADITION OF VILLAINY FOR WHICH THE HEROD LINE WAS FAMOUS OR "INFAMOUS"! SHE WAS FIRST MARRIED TO MARCUS, SON OF ALEXANDRA THE HEAD MAGISTRATE OF THE JEWS IN ALEXANDRIA. AFTER AN EARLY DEATH OF "POOR" MARCUS SHE THEN HURRIEDLY MARRIED HER FATHER'S OWN BROTHER, HEROD CHALCIS, WHO SOON AFTERWARDS, ALSO DIED! THENCE, SHE WENT TO LIVE WITH HER BROTHER AGRIPPA AND THE SCANDAL THAT AROSE FROM THIS RELATIONSHIP EVEN THE NEW BORN BERENICE COULD NOT OVERCOME! SHE THEN TRIED TO ALLAY IT BY YET ANOTHER MARRIAGE TO POLEMO, KING OF CILICIA. BUT SHE SOON BECAME TIRED OF HIM AND DESERTING HIM, RETURNED TO HER BROTHER AGRIPPA. HER CLAIM TO RECOGNITION IN THE BIBLE, CAME WHEN AGRIPPA HEARD ST. PAUL'S DEFENSE (ACTS 25:23-26) WITH BERENICE AT HIS SIDE. SHE WOUND UP HER CAREER, FIRST BECOMING THE MISTRESS OF VESPASIAN, AND THEN HIS SON TITUS--WHO, WHEN HE BECAME ROMAN EMPEROR, DISCARDED HER!

Pennies from heaven

The tall, extremely timid-looking lady peered hesitantly, fearfully through the armored screen of the rectory's front door. In her right hand she clutched a plastic bag which evidently contained something precious to her.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Can you help me with these pennies?" she stammered. "I have been to the bank to trade them for dollars, but they told me I would have to have a bank account for them to handle them for me. I have also been to some super markets, but none of them wanted to be bothered with counting pennies."

Stunned, I invited her into the rectory to assess what was going on.

There were three plastic bags to provide the strength to hold the pennies. And no wonder. As I lifted the bags, I guessed they must have weighed 20 pounds.

"Some people told me I could find help if I came here to the church," she mumbled through tears rolling down her cheeks. "Will you help me find a way to spend these pennies or exchange them for dollars?"

"No one wants to help me, not even my family, although my brother did give me some of these pennies. I have been saving pennies for a long time, but now I need to use them or at least exchange them for dollars.

"I don't have a home of my own, and I had been staying with my brother and his wife. However, I had a disagreement and a fight with his wife, after which she kicked me out on the street."

She paused to size me up, then resumed her background information which she figured would help her plead her cause. "I came here from New Roads when I was 18 years old. I left sisters and brothers in New Roads."

"And how many years ago was it that you left New Roads?"

"Well, I'm not going to tell you how old I am," she smiled. "Let's just say it's been quite a few years. In any case, I am not going back."

She seemed constrained to continue her narrative: "I have not been going to church for some time." She looked down at her clothes which were plain but tidy. "I tried to go into a big church uptown, but the people at the door told me, 'You can't come in here dressed like that!'"

I assured her that her clothes were decent, and that it does not matter with God. After some prolonged thought during which the lady remained restless, fearful and anxious, I came up with what appeared to be a feasible way out.

"I am only guessing that you may have $20 worth of pennies in these bags."

Their weight tells me there may be some 2000 pennies in all. It's only a guess, but I will take them to my bank to be counted and deposited. If their worth exceeds $20, I will give you the difference in cash."

Her eyes lit up when I handed her a $20 bill. Her smile and demeanor told me that this would surely be what she was hoping for. There was no further discussion about this open-and-shut deal which greatly appealed to her.

As soon as the weekend passed, I hustled to the bank, in great part out of curiosity about the value of the pennies. My next surprise came when I asked the teller whether she could count and deposit my pennies.

"About how much do you think they are worth?"

Startled, I recovered quickly and countered: "Are you kidding me? I have no idea how much they are worth. I thought you had equipment to count them immediately so that I could deposit them."

"We do have a machine to count them, but we do that later. Just give me an estimate of how much you think you have there. Any adjustment up or down of your total will be made to your account later."

I winced at this new bit of knowledge and informed her:

"Well, my guess from the beginning was $20. I will go with that."

Without missing a beat, the teller made my deposit. Walking away from the bank, almost talking to myself, I marveled at the simple mysteries of everyday life, wondering how much the penny total would turn out to be.

The answer to that puzzle came when I called the bank days later to see how much my actual deposit was. On pins and needles till I received word from the teller on the phone, I was totally flabbergasted when she gave the value of the pennies as $19.67. You could have decked me with a feather.

"Wow! Perhaps I should go into the gambling business," I suggested to the teller. "At this rate, I would clean out the house at the casino."

Just as I had figured in the first place, the penny lady did not return to see whether she was due a bit more than the $20 I gave her. More than likely, she estimated that sum was as good and probably better than she should get.

It is no surprise at all that the neat little Bing Crosby song of yesteryear kept running through my head: "Every time it rains, it rains pennies from heaven."

There'll be pennies from heaven for you and me." Yes, there were pennies from heaven for the dear, distraught lady and for me as well. Her misadventure turned out well and fulfilling for both of us.

Scripture Says ...

By Ed Young

Born from above

This question was asked, Jesus Christ "What must I do to be saved?" That question has been asked down through centuries by many persons. Unfortunately there has been many different explanations, most were man's understanding of this religion doctrine.

The teachings of being born from above are many.

To keep the Ten Commandments, be a good person and be concerned for your fellow man is all well and good.

Yet, that will not bring you to a place in God of being born again or born from above.

This life is but, a fraction between two eternity's. How do we find eternity with Christ? What must I do to be saved? If God is a God of love, surely He won't deny mankind of Heaven! He won't send man to hell. Many believe and hop that's true.

However, Jesus went to hell for three days. Where do the lost go?

The age old question in the heart of man has been "what must I do to be saved?"

There are some denominations believe and teach that some people or chosen of God, and some are not. They are doomed and cannot find or have eternal life. That's unscriptural.

If that's the case, Calvary's Cross was for only a few. That's unscriptural. "For as many that come unto me I will in no wise cast them away."

Well, what must I do to be saved. Born from above, what does that mean? A famous Jewish rabbi came to Jesus and asked Him in around about way the age old question how to receive eternal life? The Bible has the answer. All scripture leads to getting to know the Son of God. The scriptures or letters to mankind about God almighty and His son written by the Holy Spirit through the hand man. I John 5:11, 13. Have you read your letters lately?

The "Word" for the Week
Adrenaline in heaven?

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

There is an addiction, which is all too prevalent in our society. It doesn't involve illicit drugs or alcohol. It has to do with a chemical manufactured by our bodies. That chemical is adrenaline.

Workaholics get an adrenaline high from meeting pressure on the job. We experience the euphoria of adrenaline overdose in sky diving, bungee jumping, skiing and the like. Basketball games afford us the opportunity to get pumped.

Unfortunately, too many Christians make the mistake of confusing the euphoric lift of adrenaline with the Holy Spirit. They mistakenly think if they don't get pumped up at church the Spirit is absent.

Others go to church on Sunday morning while coming off the adrenaline highs of the week. They are going through withdrawal. Coming off the chemical makes them depressed. These folks often blame the church for how they feel. I wonder if there will be adrenaline in heaven. What do you think?

To be fit for heaven, we will be given new bodies, spiritual bodies, bodies fit for the spiritual world. We have bodies fit for the physical world now. Adrenaline is a hormone that prepares our physical bodies for fight or flight. Our senses are peaked, our energies are focused; thus we can fight for our lives or run for all we are worth. But we will never have to do that in heaven.

'Ohr-iginal' clay workshops for adults

At Ohr-O'Keefe Museum of Art 2004 is the "Year of Japan." Asian influences on American ceramics, particularly those from Japan, have been major sources of insight and inspiration for artists and potters. Japanese ceramics have been strongly influential in the United States for well over a century.

The first events of 2004 are two workshops sponsored by the Japanese Foundation. The workshops will be led by two modern masters of pottery from Japan, Kouji Sugie and Peter Seabridge. Kouji Sugie is a native of Japan. Peter Seabridge was born in England, but has resided in Japan for the past thirteen years. Both potters work in the traditional Tokoname style.

Tokoname, Japan, the site of the oldest of the six ancient kilns of Japan, has been manufacturing utilitarian pots since the 12th century.

#1: Intensive Twelve-Day Clay/Anagram Workshop (Hands on)

Master Classes with Kouji Sugie and Peter Seabridge

Monday, February 16, - Friday, February 27, 2004

#2: Sugie and Seabridge: Two-Day Tokoname Workshop (Observational)

Saturday, March 6 and Sunday, March 7, 2004

#1 Intensive Workshop (hands on)

The first workshop will be a 12-day Intensive Master Class Session with Kouji Sugie and Peter Seabridge. The first week will focus on hands-on experience in the pottery studio, followed by a week of loading and firing one of the few anagama kilns located in the United States. An anagama kiln is unique because wood is fired for an extended period of time. Ash from the burning wood makes its own glaze for the pottery. The word "anagama" comes from the Japanese words "ana," meaning "hole" or "cave," and "gama," meaning "kiln."

The price for this 12-day session is $650 per person; $625 for seniors, full-time students and members of Ohr-O'Keefe Museum of Art. There is a deposit of $325 upon registration. Space is limited for the unique experience of hands-on work alongside two masters from Japan. The registration deadline is February 2, 2004.

#2: Observational Workshop

The second workshop is a two-day Tokoname Workshop in which participants can observe, participate in question and answer sessions, and learn from the two Japanese master potters as they demonstrate the traditional clay techniques of the Tokoname style. The price for this workshop is $100; $75 for seniors, full-time students and members of Ohr-O'Keefe Museum of Art. he registration deadline is February 13, 2004.

THE SEA COAST ECHO

"Wonder Filled Wetlands", an environmental exhibit, opens at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center on Saturday, February 7.

This is the second exhibit in four months that has opened at the Discovery Center. "Celebrate the World We Share-Mexico", an international travel exhibit where children can experience the Mexican culture, opened in October, 2003.

The Wonder-Filled Wetlands exhibit is the final component of a three year long environmental project made possible by a grant from the Mississippi Coastal Impact Assistance Program (CIAP), administered by the MS Department of Environmental Quality and the Harrison County Board of Supervisors.

The Lynn Meadows Discovery Center received

$193,000 to provide hands-on exhibits and programs that communicate the "wonder", the mystery, and the majesty of the wetlands to young people.

In addition, visitors would learn about the important functions of the wetlands. Wetland art murals, garden activities, environmental summer camps and classes and Discoveries to Go Traveling Trunks for classrooms were also projects accomplished through the CIAP funding.

In the exhibit, children can become a Wetlands Investi-Gator and discover facts about recycling and taking care of our Mississippi Gulf Coast environment; report their findings before screens of "enviro scenes" in the setting of a television studio with roles for cameramen, directors and producers; then experience a kayak trip down the Wolf River.

During opening day on Saturday, February 7, 10:00-4:00, activities include creating dragonfly, ladybug, butterfly or bee wings; laughing at a puppet show with wetland animals; touching tidal critters from Marine Life; practicing nest building skills; experimenting with different soils and water; investigating tree growth with "slices" of limbs and composting with worms and Sam the Garden Man.

At 2:00, there will be a special recognition ceremony for the Discovery Center's environmental supporters.

All the activities are included in the $6 admission. For more information, call 228-897-6039.

Checking in with Amber Tamblyn

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

If the People's Choice Awards are any indication, Amber Tamblyn should be receiving heavenly messages for some time to come.

The young actress's Friday-night CBS show, "Joan of Arcadia," recently was named favorite new dramatic series at the ceremony, and its solid ratings in its freshman year make it a virtual lock to be renewed for a second season.

Tamblyn stars as teenager Joan Girardi, who is addressed by God through various individuals. She's hesitant to make that known to her police-chief father (Joe Mantegna), mother (Mary Steenburgen) and brothers (Jason Ritter and Michael Welch).

"I probably wouldn't be surprised that God would appear to me in any form," Tamblyn claims. "The spiritual nature of what God is, in a human's opinion, is very reflective of what it could be in reality. If it showed up in a person, it could be God. If it was a dog, it could be. Even if it wasn't anything, like a whisper in the wind."

In the "Joan of Arcadia" episode scheduled to air Friday, Feb. 13, Tamblyn gets a bonus: She acts opposite her father - Russ Tamblyn of "West Side Story" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" fame - as he guest stars as a hippie-throwback dog walker who channels God.

"My father is a very, very open person," Amber says, "and when I started acting, he wanted to support me fully. I don't think I fully understood what it took away from your life, until

I started doing it on a soap opera (ABC's "General Hospital"). That was actually the original reason my father didn't want me to do it, because he was a child actor and it was very hard for him. He didn't want me to go through the same things he did."

Birthdate: May 14, 1983.
Birthplace: Santa Monica, Calif.
Other TV work: "General Hospital"; "Boston Public"; "The Twilight Zone"; "CSI: Miami"; "Without a Trace."

Hobbies: Writing poetry; singing; dancing.

'America Beyond the Color Line' draws honest picture

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

The Super Bowl and the Academy Awards flank February's television events. Yet a special that is ultimately far more important than a game or a prize is "America Beyond the Color Line With Henry Louis Gates Jr." Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 3 and 4, on PBS (check local listings).

The four-hour documentary looks at blacks in the United States today. Gates, chair of Harvard University's Afro-American studies department, travels to four sections of the country, interviewing the most and the least powerful. The result is that viewers realize how far blacks have come since segregation but how much work is left to do when one in five black men in their 20s is in prison, on probation or on parole.

Gates, who has long proven what a fine writer he is, shines as a documentarian. He is a natural interviewer, whether he climbs 11 flights of stairs in the projects in the second segment, "Chicago: Streets of Heaven," to listen to a mom trying to keep her children safe, or sits in Secretary of State Colin Powell's office in the third, "East Coast: Ebony Towers." Gates shows himself to be as star-struck as anyone when in the final segment, "Los Angeles: Black Hollywood," he gushes over singer Alicia Keys and young actresses.

In the first segment, "South: The Black Belt," Gates visits Memphis, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, acknowledging his fears as a black man in the South. "I have to find out how the South has done since the speech," Gates says of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King's most famous speech. "What's become of his dream?"

Two NFL vets share tales from the Super Bowl

By George Dickle

Marcus Allen's memories of his only Super Bowl appearance are somewhat of a paradox.

On one hand, the events in Tampa, Fla., the weekend of Jan. 21-22, 1984, during which his Los Angeles Raiders routed the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVIII, 38-9, are a blur, remembered by Allen the way most remember their wedding day. On the other hand, what happened in the game itself still seems very vivid to the now-CBS commentator.

"The best way I can describe it is: Just imagine a still painting, and I'm the only figure in the painting running around, and everybody else is sort of standing still, trying to stop me," says Allen, who will file reports from the field on "The Super Bowl Today" prior to the CBS broadcast of Super Bowl XXXVIII live from Reliant Stadium in Houston on Sunday, Feb. 1. "There's really not much they can do about it. I mean, my awareness was so keen, and it was so vivid, and I can see even the anguish on the guys' faces as I ran by them."

Allen's Zenlike state of mind was such that "everything was surreal to me," he says. "When I walked out on the field (and) looked around, for some reason, I was in such peace and very calm and, really, nothing bothered me. Anything that I found sort of interesting or could have been disturbing, I'd end up smiling at. So I guess I was in a pretty good frame of mind."

The result was a good day for Allen: 191 yards rushing on 20 carries, including a record-setting 74-yard run, two touchdowns, and a Super Bowl victory that was sewn up in the third quarter. His efforts earned him MVP honors.

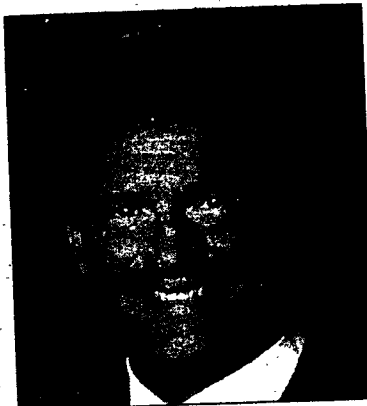

Joe Theismann, an analyst on ESPN's "Sunday Night Football" and contributor to "Sunday NFL Countdown," was on the other side of the field that day as the starting quarterback for the Redskins. Not surprisingly, he has memories that aren't quite as happy. "The game was just full of bizarre plays," he says. "Our first punt was blocked for a touchdown. I threw an interception at the end of the half that was run back for a touchdown. Marcus Allen broke a 74-yard run for a touchdown. Cliff Branch caught a bomb for a touchdown. And we couldn't get out of our own way."

Theismann's first experience came a year earlier in Pasadena, Calif., when the Redskins defeated the Miami Dolphins, 27-17, in Super Bowl XVII. He says, "From the mental side of it, your first game is one of real euphoria. It's very hard to describe to someone what a Super Bowl is like. I had this conversation with Junior Seau before the San Diego Chargers went on to play the San Francisco 49ers (in 1995 in Super Bowl XXIX). We did a game late in the season for them, and I said, 'I'd really like to tell you what the Super Bowl is like, but I can't do justice to it.' And then after the game, I saw him at a function. I said, 'What did you think of the Super Bowl?' He said, 'You know, you really can't describe it. It's bigger than life. It's bigger than a football game. It's an event.' And that, to me, has always been the best way to describe it."

According to Theismann, the Redskins came to Pasadena ready to go to war. "I've always described my role on that football team as more of a ringmaster than a quarterback," he says, "because my wide receivers were nicknamed 'the Smurfs,' my offensive line were called 'the Hogs.'"

"We had John Riggins at a Friday night party before the Super Bowl show up at (then-Redskins owner Jack Kent) Cooke's party in white tails, top hat and a cane ... and probably ripped to the gills. And the linebackers, when we arrived in Pasadena, all changed into Army fatigues like they were ready to go to war. I mean, it was just a very, very unique group of men. I've always described that group of guys as characters with character."

Former Washington Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann, a contributor to ESPN's "Sunday NFL Countdown," is a veteran of two Super Bowls and a winner of one.

Also known for having characters on their team, the Raiders had a little ritual the team liked to engage in during practice for a big game. "The thing I remember most," Allen says, "the now-GM, Matt Millen (then a Raiders linebacker), was really staging a fight with (Raiders offensive lineman) Mickey Marvin because we were sort of superstitious. Anytime we had fights during practice, we thought we were prepared to play. And I remember Matt and Mickey Marvin got into a fight, and they did such an incredible job of pulling it off, they made it seem so real because they drew blood. No one knew about it until later, though, because it didn't appear to be acting to anybody else. We thought it was exactly what we needed to see. ... Matt later told us that he and Mickey had gotten together."

'Angel' seeks redemption in a 100th-episode reunion

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

This past November, in the vast, echoing expanse of the Wolfram & Hart lobby, The WB Network's "Angel" proved that any death knells sounded for it were entirely premature.

The Wednesday-night drama with the undead title character is very much alive, and executives from both The WB and studio 20th Century Fox showed up to cut a big cake (dripping with blood-red icing, of course) and sing its praises on the occasion of its 100th episode, airing Feb. 4.

Spun off from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," "Angel" has spent four-and-a-half seasons with David Boreanaz as the 200-plus-year-old vampire with a soul, struggling to redeem himself by good deeds.

"Usually spinoffs are just cynical things," says WB entertainment chief Jordan Levin, "but this really extended a story that needed to be told."

This season has seen Angel facing two major challenges. First, he must figure out how to do good while running the Los Angeles office of the evil law firm that once wanted his head on a platter. Second, he must deal with the resurrection of his former vampire protégé, Spike (James Marsters) - whose fiery demise in the cause of world salvation in the "Buffy" finale turns out to have been only temporary. As the other vampire with a soul, Spike's heroic deeds have made Angel question his own commitment to the cause.

Oh, and along the way, Angel deals with the odd werewolf, demon, ghost and Mexican wrestler.

One hallmark of both "Buffy," created by Joss Whedon, and "Angel," created by Whedon and David Greenwalt, is the use of subtext and classic literary themes. While some TV shows have their themes articulated by loyal viewers with the time to think about it all, these shows know what they're trying to say.

While "Buffy" was about (take your pick) female empowerment, the hero's journey and the ties that bind, in the case of "Angel," Whedon explains, "The idea of the show was redemption and what it takes to win back a life when you've misused yours terribly. 'Angel,' to me, is so important because it's about how an adult faces what they've done with their life, goes forward with it, overcomes it. It has a great deal of meaning to me ... plus, awesome fights."

"If I have any message for America, it's that you can solve problems through fistfights."

But seriously, redemption is a tricky theme on television, with its ever-present risk of sliding into pretentious puffery or treacly moralizing. But it's an idea that cuts straight across "Angel," as each of the main characters struggles to come back from loss in one way or another and prove his or her worth. That's especially true of the vampires, who have a lot to answer for.

Angel was cursed with his soul and, after a century of wandering about aimlessly, was spurred into rejoining the human race and using his powers for good. Spike, on the other hand, driven by guilt and a desire to be a man worthy of Buffy's love (a love she once gave freely to Angel), risked life and limb to get his soul back - and wound up saving the world.

"Angel doesn't seem to register that Spike has a soul," Marsters says. "It's the same reason that Spike never believed Angel having a soul. When I was evil, I didn't buy it. Now that I have a soul, I don't buy that he's reformed at all."

"The reason is, I've seen him in action. I've seen him kill too many people to ever believe that he could be reformed. It's exactly the same for him. He's seen Spike do so much stuff that all this prancing around, pretending that he cares now, has gotta be bull, but it's not. That's the wonderful thing. They both are reformed; they both are trying very hard to make up for it."

In the 100th episode, "You're Welcome," Angel cohort Cordelia awakens from the mystical coma she's been in since the end of last season. That was the last we saw of her, as former regular Charisma Carpenter was dropped from the cast. Always outspoken, Cordelia has a few things to say about Angel consorting with corporate evil.

"Investing him in the cause of good while he's running the evil operation doesn't really make sense," Boreanaz says, "so he doesn't understand. That's what's bringing him down. Cordelia brings that back to him."

Calling her one-off return "bittersweet," Carpenter says, "She comes to put Angel back on the path, and then she leaves. Cordelia's return in this episode is a love letter to Cordelia."

So, underneath all "Angel's" monster makeup and kung-fu fighting, Marsters insists there's real meat on these bones. "Joss always aims so high in his themes. He's got two people striving to be good, in the real world."

"That sounds strange to say, because it's got vampires and stuff, but to not be coy, to not be overly sentimental, to not be overly simplistic about it - how do you reform your life? If you really have done evil, how do you face the world and try to become your best self? How do you talk about these things?

David Boreanaz portrays the title character, a 200-year-old vampire with a soul, in the fifth-year drama "Angel," which airs its 100th episode Wednesday on The WB Network.

"Man, redemption, it's what we all hope for, because frankly, we all know we've done evil. We're all human beings, and all of us have. We all have regret; we all have deep guilt; and we all, at the inner core of us, want to believe that we can redeem ourselves."

While Boreanaz may not have come to the lead role in "Angel" seeking redemption, he did have a short resume and a lot to prove.

A steady presence on-screen and off, he takes a Zen approach. "Believe in yourself and put your mind to it. That's not the problem. The problem is that there are no problems."

'The Blackwater Lightship' sails over rocky waters

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

A mark of a great movie is that even when the ending is obvious from the beginning, people still want to watch.

In Hallmark Hall of Fame's "The Blackwater Lightship" Wednesday, Feb. 4, on CBS, the sad ending is clear from the start. What makes this a remarkably touching movie is that the death of a young man forges forgiveness among the three women in his life.

Viewers should be prepared for a three-hanky cry. They also should be ready to see Angela Lansbury as plain and old.

"At my age, if I am afraid to lose the glamour, which I no longer really have, then I am no actress," she says.

Naturally, Lansbury, who has been nominated for three Oscars and won four Tony Awards, is a splendid actress. Speaking in a perfect brogue, which is not a tremendous stretch for someone who lives a good part of the year in Ireland, Lansbury captures the essence of a tough, old Irish woman who spent her life trying to do what was right.

Set and filmed in Ireland, the movie revolves around Declan (Keith McErlean), who is ravaged by AIDS. He has never come out to his family, and has avoided them since becoming ill. Now he wants to visit his grandmother's house one last time.

Granny (Lansbury) lives on the beach in an old house. She is distanced from her daughter, Lily (Dianne Wiest), who is an executive in a computer firm. Lily, in turn, is estranged from her daughter, Helen (Gina McKee, "Notting Hill"), who is Declan's sister.

Told with flashbacks, which work well because they are brief and the children playing Helen and Declan resemble them so closely, the story unfolds over a few days. Helen's husband takes their children away. This leaves Helen with her mother and grandmother to fuss over Declan and say goodbye. They are joined by two of his friends, Paul (Sam Robards, "Al: Artificial Intelligence") and Larry (Brian F. O'Byrne, "Bandits").

There is no hope for Declan, other than to give him a peaceful death. In lesser hands than director John Erman's, this would have been maudlin.

"I had a very strong point of view with this film, which is it was able to send a message about how we all need to overcome our resentments," Erman says. "And get beyond our angers and resentments and petty grievances, and get into love and reaching out to other people. It certainly is not a story about AIDS. It is a story about the healing process of love, certainly in the Hallmark genre. This picture has a slightly more realistic approach than some other films. This film still grabs me at certain moments and makes me cry. And that's after many, many, many viewings."

As the three generations of women spend time together, they confront their painful past. Lily's husband had been ill and died of cancer when the children were quite young. They stayed at Granny's then, too. Now, they must cope with what happened then, and why each of them reacted as she did. These are rough emotions and the movie, based on Colm Toibin's novel, handles them beautifully.

Saluting Super Bowl with 'Tailgate Marathon'

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Super Bowl Sunday is arguably the biggest sports day of the year, so The History Channel has put together a block of programming that explains the reasons why the day has become the country's undeclared national holiday.

Its 10-hour "Super Bowl Tailgate Marathon" on Sunday, Feb. 1, offers a mix of older and more recent programming that celebrates everything from food and drink to gambling and even what our politicians have done on the big day.

First up is "Tailgating," which follows the evolution of tailgate parties, those ubiquitous gatherings in the parking lots of U.S. sports venues where fans load up on food and drink in the hours preceding the big game. The film explains that the tradition may extend as far back as ancient Rome, when fans of gladiators brought food to the events, and the Civil War, when onlookers brought picnic baskets to the Battle of Bull Run. It also visits such current popular tailgating sites as Lambeau Field in Green Bay, Wis., and Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, La., where fans claim they eat better there than in some four- and five-star restaurants.

Next is "American Drinks: History in a Glass," a rebroadcast of a 1999 "Time Machine" episode that is not necessarily sports related. It looks at the history of American beverages, along the way sharing trivia such as the fact that Welch's Grape Juice was first served in church, that Jack Daniels was invented by a 16-year-old, and that Pepsi was originally known as "Brad's Drink."

"American Eats: History on a Bun," a two-hour special from 1999, looks at the variety of fast foods that have become popular over the years and how they were invented. Some have their origins abroad (pizza, the hero sandwich), some were mistakes (chocolate-chip cookies, hot-fudge sundaes) and some are the subject of debate (how the hot dog got its name).

"High Rollers: A History of Gambling," another "Time Machine" show from 1999, examines how wagering and gaming has evolved from an illicit and illegal activity done in smoke-filled back rooms to legitimate big business, where in Las Vegas it's marketed as family entertainment. It shows gambling throughout history, from Mississippi riverboats and Wild Bill Hickok's death during a poker game to the invention of the slot machine. It also looks at how such time-honored and once-legitimate pastimes as horse racing, three-card monte, and poker and casino games have become the province of shadier parties.

Returning to the food theme is 2001's "More American Eats," which looks at junk food and its origin, as well as how heavy immigration in the early 20th century influenced American cuisine. It reveals how there really was a Chef Boyardee (actually spelled "Boyar-di"), where Spam (the canned-ham product, not the cyberspace annoyance) came from, and how frozen-food pioneers Birdseye and Swanson got their start.

Wrapping things up is "Presidents on Super Sunday," which premiered last week, revealing what our chief executives have done on the big day. One actually became involved in the action - sort of. Prior to Super Bowl VI in 1972, Richard Nixon called Miami Dolphins head coach Don Shula with an idea for a play, a quick slant pass. The play didn't work, and the Dolphins eventually lost to the Dallas Cowboys, 24-3.

-Of course, while football naturally draws the country's focus at the beginning of the week, the National Hockey League gears up for what it hopes will be considerable attention at the end of it.

The NHL's "All-Star Saturday Night," broadcast live on ESPN from Xcel Energy Center in St. Paul, Minn., on Feb. 7, is part of the build-up to the NHL All-Star Game, which takes place the next day. It is composed of two events: the YoungStars Game, which features NHL players 25 and younger, and the SuperSkills Competition, which tests players' ability in areas such as puck handling, slap shots, skating and goaltending.

Sports Best Bets

"NFL Football" Sunday, Feb. 1

(CBS, 6 p.m. ET): Nearly five months after it began, the 2003-2004 season comes to a close today at Reliant Stadium in Houston with Super Bowl XXXVIII. CBS' Greg Gumbel and Phil Simms will call the action as the champions of the American and National Football Conferences square off. Overall, the NFC owns a 21-17 edge in the championship game, including last year's 48-21 victory for the Tampa Buccaneers over the Oakland Raiders.

"College Basketball" Monday, Feb. 2

(ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): Connecticut's safety net may take them a long way this season. Emeka Okafor patrols the paint for the Huskies, allowing his teammates to gamble on defense. When their zone breaks down, Okafor is there to block shots (he had nine in a recent win over previously unbeaten Oklahoma). The junior forward-center is part of what is perhaps the best starting five in the country, one that gets a major test tonight against Big East rival Syracuse.

"NHL Hockey" Thursday, Feb. 5

(ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): Before trekking to Minnesota for the NHL's All-Star Game, plenty of fan favorites will be in Denver tonight when the Wings visit the Avalanche. Unlike the midseason spectacle, there will be plenty of checking between these two Western heavyweights, what with the Avs' top line of Peter Forsberg, Alex Tanguay and Milan Hejduk able to strike at any moment. Detroit counters with point-per-game producer Pavel Datsyuk and sniper Brett Hull.

Movie: My Girl

Vada (Anna Chlumsky) is an 11-year-old girl with a less than ordinary life. Her father (Dan Aykroyd) is a mortician who uses the family home for his funeral business. Her mother died after her birth, leaving Vada with her dad and her grandmother, who suffers from Alzheimer's. Into this girl's hypochondriac world arrives a plucky woman (Jamie Lee Curtis) responding to her father's employment ad. This 1993 comedy-drama is a bittersweet tale of a girl coming of age.

Tuesday

2 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Fly Away Home

After her mother dies, 13-year-old Amy (Anna Paquin) goes to live with her father (Jeff Daniels), an annoyingly eccentric inventor. Amy feels isolated and miserable until she discovers an orphaned flock of baby geese and adopts them. A truly beautiful, saccharine-free children's story of grief and renewal, this 1996 drama is a wonderful alternative to Hollywood's usual pastel heroes and their talking knick-knack friends.

Rawle D. Lewis

Thursday

8:15 a.m. and HBO

Movie: Cool Runnings

Jon Turteltaub ("While You Were Sleeping") directed this fact-based and surprisingly charming 1993 comedy about four athletes from Jamaica determined to form a bobsled team. Malik Yoba, Doug E. Doug, Leon and Rawle D. Lewis star, with John Candy as the team's reluctant coach.

2:30 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Three Men and a Little Lady

This 1990 sequel to "Three Men and a Cradle" reunites Jack, Peter and Michael (Ted Danson, Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg), who are raising Jack and Sylvia's (Nancy Travis) daughter, Mary (Robin Weisman). However, Sylvia decides to move to England to wed her new boyfriend, and she's taking Mary with her. Horrified by the thought of long-distance parenting, the three men set out to stop the nuptials.

Saturday

12:15 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Three Men and a Baby

Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg and Ted Danson star as three happy Manhattan bachelors in this 1987 comedy directed by Leonard Nimoy ("Star Trek"). Peter and Michael are plunged into intrigue and diapers after a woman leaves her baby at their apartment for Jack, their roommate and the baby's father, to care for. While Peter and Michael await Jack's return, they must avoid a detective looking for another package that was dropped off at the guys' apartment.

TV Trivia

Bridget Fonda ("Point of No Return") physically trained for over a month in preparation for the vigorous fight scenes required of her character.

Jean Reno ("The Professional") was born Juan Moreno in Casablanca, and speaks French, Italian, Spanish and English.

Sidney Poitier ("The Defiant Ones") dropped out of school, and later lied about his age to enlist in the U.S. Army.

Cate Blanchett ("The Gift") took a job as a movie extra in a boxing film after she found herself stranded in Egypt with no money.

Tim Curry ("The Rocky Horror Picture Show") was nominated for a Tony Award for his performance in "My Favorite Year."

The ad time has been sold. The hype machine has been in overdrive for two weeks. Now, it's time to play, as Greg Gumbel and Phil Simms call the action in Super Bowl XXXVIII between the Carolina Panthers and New England Patriots from Reliant Stadium in Houston. The Panthers hope their strong defense and error-free offense can carry them to their first title; while Pats quarterback Tom Brady is 5-0 in the postseason, including the Super Bowl two years ago.

Movie: Independence Day

Will Smith heads an all-star cast in this edge-of-your-seat 1996 sci-fi thriller about an alien armada on a mission to invade Earth. After much of mankind is destroyed, a band of survivors joins forces to repel the invaders and save the world. Directed by Roland Emmerich, the film also stars Bill Pullman, Jeff Goldblum, Mary McDonnell, Judd Hirsch, Robert Loggia and Randy Quaid.

Queer Eye for the Straight Guy

NBC again borrows one of cable's hottest shows for a night as three episodes of Bravo's unscripted series air in succession. In "John Bargeman," the so-called "Fab Five" use their lifestyle expertise to help a man make a marriage proposal. The following two episodes find them helping an ex-Marine in the kitchen, and spicing up the physical appearance of a cameraman.

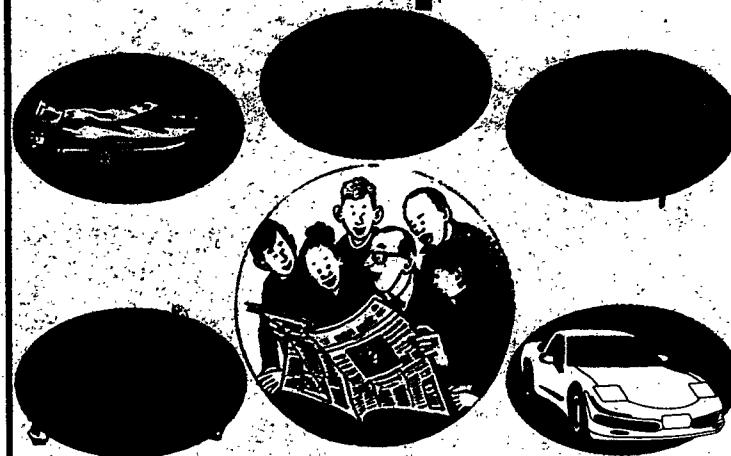

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Survivor: All-Stars

It's one thing for contestants who never have played the game before, and quite another for those who know all too well how it works. As a new edition of executive producer Mark Burnett's unscripted series premieres, 18 players culled from past versions vie to "outwit, outplay and outlast" one another again. Jeff Probst returns as host — and this time, he has a good idea of what to expect from the competitors.

Soap Synopsis

All My Children

Jack incriminated himself on the witness stand, stating that he stole heroin from the police evidence room and planted it in Michael's condo. Greenlee eavesdropped as Kendall proposed to Ryan, which he later accepted. Ryan caught Greenlee snooping in Kendall's home and stunned her with the news of his engagement. Thinking that Aidan was having an affair with Kendall, Mia followed him to the pump house and was shocked to find Fred Lomax instead. Erica told Kendall she hates her after the DNA test results were read in court and Kendall was declared to be carrying Michael's baby. Coming: Ryan reaches the breaking point with Greenlee.

As the World Turns

Just after Alison admitted to Chris that the baby is his, she slipped off the fire escape and fell to the ground, suffering a miscarriage. Aaron swore to the police that Chris pushed Alison, and Chris was arrested. Following appeals from Mike and Simon, Katie admitted to Mike that she loves him, but she must go with Simon. Holden lashed out at Lily after Luke challenged Lois when her psychic connection to Rose didn't appear to hold up. Paul schemed to create an emergency at BRO so that Barbara would invite him back. Jessica agreed to take a letter to Bonnie for Sarah, but admitted to Ben that she wasn't going to deliver it. Coming: Chris maintains his innocence.

Bold and Beautiful

Nick tracked down Brooke in Paris and she decided it was time to return home. Jackie urged Nick to make his move on Brooke before Ridge gets a chance, and prevented Ridge from seeing Brooke. Thomas was taken with Caitlin, the new intern at Forrester. Massimo reluctantly agreed to let Jackie keep her job. After Eric flatly turned down Deacon's plea to support him and Bridget getting back together, Deacon found a sketch of Jackie on Eric's desk and called Massimo. A furious Massimo changed his mind about dropping the vendetta against Eric. However Eric urged Massimo to work out a peaceful solution for their families' sake. Coming: Caitlin becomes intrigued with the Forresters.

Days of Our Lives

The tiger attacked Tony, who was rushed to the hospital, barely alive. The killer, wearing a lab coat, then snuck into Tony's room, only to be recognized and named as the Stalker by Tony. Before Tony could reveal the killer's identity to anyone else, he died from the lethal drug that the Stalker slipped into his IV. Nicole went to confront Tony but dropped her barrette, then lied to Brady that she never got into Tony's room. Nicole's lies caught up with her when Victor found the barrette and Brady realized that Nicole had been deceiving him all along. As Shawn received a sensual massage from Belle, Jan hid on the fire escape, watching them. Coming: Celeste shares something with Marlena.

General Hospital

A devastated Carly became intimate with Alcazar after she discovered Sonny and Sam in bed together. Jax went to reconcile with Sam and found her with a barely dressed Sonny. Sonny refused to let Carly see her children, and Alcazar promised to help her get her sons back. Georgie was stunned when Guy found the real Tom. Dano bids adieu to soap operas

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

Linda Dano is leaving her role as Rae Cummings in ABC's "One Life to Live."

"As many of you already know, I will not be at ABC after my current contract expires in June," Dano read from a prepared statement. "The writers are working on when and how the story of Dr. Rae Cummings will wind down."

"My start as an actor began on prime-time television and film - that evolved into a wonderful career on daytime television. My 17 years as the fabulous Felicia Gallant ("Another World") were some of the happiest times in my life."

"It's time for me to spread my wings and try new things. My books, columns and designs will always be a big part of my life, but as an actor, I'd like to explore more opportunities in talk television, theater, film and prime time. Believe me when I say I'm very excited about this new chapter in my life."

In other news: Carly Corinthos' (Tamara Braun) attorney comes to town on Wednesday, Feb. 4. Marqui-ta Terry will play the role of lawyer Iris McNeill.

Dear Candace: My wife and I are longtime viewers of "The Young and the Restless" and we really enjoyed the article about Heather Tom, who played Victoria on the show.

Please keep us informed on what Heather is doing now. -Bill and Betty Eubanks in South Carolina.

Dear Reader: Tom is enjoying her role as Kelly Buchanan on "OLTL," and she's working on a play that she hopes to open in New York in the very near future.

Dear Candace: When are they going to speed up the story lines on "Passions"? You can watch once a week and not have missed anything. It's so slow. All of the story lines drag out so long that we lose interest. -Bernice Peterson via the Internet.

Dear Reader: That's the way head writer and creator James Reilly tells stories. It took two years for him to get Bo and Hope (Peter Reckell, Kristian Alfonso) together in "Days of Our Lives." The story line was always interesting, but that isn't necessarily true with "Passions."

Rory (Alexis Bledel) inspires Paris (Liza Weil) to make some relationship-related decisions.

7 p.m. and TBS Movie: G.I. Jane

Demi Moore is at her buff, buzz-cut, butt-kicking best in this 1997 drama about a Navy lieutenant who becomes the first woman to undergo the brutal training of the elite SEALs. She's a test case to prove that women have what it takes for full combat duty, but the assumption is that she won't make it, thus silencing the integrationists. Of course, she's not about to let that happen. Anne Bancroft and Viggo Mortensen also star.

8 p.m. and DSC Reasonable Doubt

Call it the "Rashomon" factor: Virtually any event is recalled in different ways by the various people who were involved or were witnesses. This new special examines reasons why "reasonable doubt" is a term often heard in courtrooms before verdicts are delivered. Specific instances in which conflicting views affected the possible outcomes of trials are considered.

8:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC Less Than Perfect

"Baywatch" icon Pamela Anderson guest stars as a former employee whose return to the newsroom worries Ramona (Sherri Shepherd) in "All About Claude." Not only does the woman make an effort to cozy up to Claude (Sara Rue), she also seems to have her eye on Ramona's boyfriend.

8:35 p.m. on TMC Movie: Hardball

Sort of an updated "Bad News Bears," this 2001 drama casts Keanu Reeves as a hard-drinking gambler whose reckless ways eventually catch up to him. He seeks a loan to clear a debt, but the only way he can secure the money is to agree to coach a Little League Baseball team. Diane Lane plays a woman who helps reform Reeves' character. D.B. Sweeney co-stars.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

An esteemed politician (guest star Tom Aldredge), who has built his career largely on advocating civil rights, is suspected of involvement in a lynching a half-century earlier in the new episode "The Senator." A prostitute tries to enlist Roy (Anson Mount) in a scheme to murder her father.

Wednesday Best Bets

1:30 p.m. and TMC

Movie: Bandits

Almost criminally ignored on its initial theatrical release, Barry Levinson's decidedly off-center 2001 comedy follows a bored housewife (Cate Blanchett) who finds excitement after she hooks up with two mismatched prison escapees (Bruce Willis, Billy Bob Thornton).

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

A clairvoyant classmate worries Clark (Tom Welling) with a vision of Lana (Kristin Kreuk) being killed in a fire in the new episode "Hereafter." Chloe (Allison Mack) is suspicious of the supposed seer; what she learns gives Clark even more reason to be concerned for the safety of those around him.

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: In Harm's Way

Director Otto Preminger's 1965 drama about two officers' responses to the Japanese attack at Hawaii's Pearl Harbor stars John Wayne as Rockwell Torrey, a larger-than-life U.S. Navy captain. Patricia Neal portrays Maggie, an attractive Navy nurse who catches Rockwell's eye. The film's all-star cast also includes Kirk Douglas, Tom Tryon, Dana Andrews and Burgess Meredith.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

Toby (Richard Schiff) makes a secret end run to reform Social Security by skipping protocol to get the president's (Martin Sheen) support in the new episode "Slow News Day." The plan backfires, leaving Josh and Leo (Bradley Whitford, John Spencer) upset over being left out of the loop. C.J. (Allison Janney), also angry about being in the dark, deals with a reporter ready to run a related and potentially damaging story.

8 p.m. and DSC

Unsolved History

John Wilkes Booth was the man who ultimately murdered one of the United States' most celebrated presidents, but others previously had tried. "The Plots to Kill Lincoln" recalls several of the earlier tries, emphasizing the factors that foiled those assassination attempts. Some were carefully orchestrated protective measures, while others were sheer fate. Then came that fateful night at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C.

8 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Cape Fear

Martin Scorsese directed this 1991 remake of the 1962 thriller about an ex-con seeking revenge on the attorney who compromised his defense 14 years earlier. Unlike the earlier work, Scorsese's take blurs the lines between good and evil, evoking sympathy for the ex-con (Robert De Niro) and questioning the lawyer's (Nick Nolte) integrity.

8:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Oliver Beene

Ted (Andrew Lawrence) tries to claim the first move toward a Swedish exchange student (guest star Maggie Grace) before Oliver (Grant Rosenmeyer), who saw her first, makes it instead in the new episode "Dibs." Oliver does all he can to thwart Ted, and he succeeds too well. Jerry and Charlotte (Grant Shaud, Wendy Makkena) revisit what used to be their favorite nightspot.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

A motivational speaker takes a fatal plunge from a hotel balcony in the new episode "Married With Children." Seeking the person who pushed her, Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) are led to the victim's ex-lover, who apparently has kidnapped the deceased person's daughter. A statewide search for the abducted girl and her captor begins.

9 p.m. on HBO

Inside the NFL

A Super Bowl champion has been crowned, yet the season won't be complete until HBO's award-winning NFL program airs its season finale. Offering their take on the big game will be regular co-hosts Cris Carter, Cris Collinsworth, Bob Costas and Dan Marino, who was recently appointed senior vice president of football operations for the Dolphins. Correspondents Peter King and Armen Keteyian should weigh in with their thoughts as well.

Richard Schiff

Friday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 4-CBS

Joan of Arcadia

Joan (Amber Tamblyn) gets a heavenly order to join the school debate team in the new episode "State of Grace." She's partnered with a stutterer (guest star Dan Byrd) who joins her in defending school security practices that have drawn protest. Grace (Becky Wahlstrom), who is firmly against them, resents Joan's position. Will (Joe Mantegna) seeks the perpetrator of a hate crime against a clergyman.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Movie: The Astronaut's Wife

In this 1999 suspense tale, Charlize Theron plays the title spouse, a teacher worried about her husband (Johnny Depp) after he returns from outer space. While he was in orbit, he was out of touch with NASA for two minutes — during which something strange may have happened. Since she is pregnant, she develops more concerns about his suddenly odd behavior. Joe Morton co-stars.

7:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Ed

The series ends its fourth season on the early side, but with a long-anticipated event: the wedding of Ed and Carol (Tom Cavanagh, Julie Bowen). Before they take their vows, they go through the ritual of their respective bachelor and bachelorette parties, as Warren (Justin Long) plans a comprehensive video of the nuptials. The ceremony is bound to be out of the ordinary, since it has a circus motif.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That's Just Wrong

The strange, generally inappropriate behavior of various people gets a showcase in this new special hosted by twins Elaine and Diane Klimaszewski. The hour's variety-show format allows for different approaches, from staged stunts to contests, but the way most of the participants act remains ... well, just wrong.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Hope & Faith

Series star Kelly Ripa works with the woman-whose daytime job she inherited, Kathie Lee Gifford, who guest stars in the new episode "The Diner Story." Gifford plays a no-nonsense waitress who interferes with Hope and Faith's (Faith Ford, Ripa) scheme to meet a director who plans to film an upcoming movie in Cleveland. They track him to a restaurant, then discover they lack the money to pay for the meals they had.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Grounded for Life

Claudia and Sean (Megyn Price, Donal Logue) take advantage of a gift certificate for a massage session at home in the new episode "I Think We're Alone Now." The experience turns out to be less relaxing than they anticipated. Lily (Lynsey Bartilson) attends the winter formal with Brad (Bret Harrison), whose dance moves leave something to be desired.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Handler

An investigation of a crime family has personal implications for one of the agents in the new episode "The Wedding Party." Joe and Darnell (Joe Pantoliano, Hill Harper) are involved in the probe, but the operative who gets in the deepest is Lily (Anna Belknap), who attracts the son of the main mobster. He becomes so smitten with her, he asks her to marry him.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Third Watch

Kim (Kim Raver) fears the worst may happen to Doherty (Eddie Cibrian) when he's offered a promotion that would transfer him to a dangerous area in the new episode "Sleeping Dogs Lie." Doherty may not survive a sweatshop fire to accept the offer. A new captain (guest star Paul Michael Glaser, "Starsky and Hutch") with a history of closing stations arrives.

9 p.m. and BRAV

Movie: The Rocky Horror Picture Show

Let's do the time warp again! Rarely shown on television, this 1975 screen version of an underground stage musical never will be mistaken for another film. The cult classic strands travelers Brad and Janet (Barry Bostwick, Susan Sarandon) in the lair of Dr. Frank N. Furter (Tim Curry). The picture virtually created the term "midnight movie" — and the way audiences responded to it left theater ushers with big cleanup jobs.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: I Love Trouble

The producing-directing-writing team of Charles Shyer and Nancy Meyers crafted this 1994 throwback to the newsroom-based romantic comedies of Hollywood past. Nick Nolte and Julia Roberts star as rival reporters who meet, trade insults and eventually fall in love while investigating the mysterious circumstances surrounding a train derailment. Saul Rubinek, and Robert Loggia co-star.

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: The Lion King

Expectations were high for the first Disney animated feature to follow the successful "Aladdin," but no one expected this 1994 tale of a lion cub's coming of age to explode into one of the most successful movies of all time. Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Matthew Broderick, Jeremy Irons and Nathan Lane provide voices. Elton John's "Can You Feel the Love Tonight" won an Academy Award as best song.

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: Midnight Run

Robert De Niro stars as an ex-police officer-turned-bounty hunter who is in charge of transporting his prisoner, an embezzling accountant (Charles Grodin), from New York to Los Angeles. He soon discovers this will not be an easy transport: It seems the mafia is on their tail, with orders to kill. The 1988 action-comedy movie also stars Yaphet Kotto and John Ashton.

7 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: Colors

Directed by Dennis Hopper, this gritty, vivid 1988 melodrama boasts excellent performances by Robert Duvall and Sean Penn as Los Angeles police partners. They're assigned to monitor street-gang violence, and what they witness unsettles them. The film stirred controversy during its theatrical run, since some community leaders feared it might incite actual mayhem.

7 p.m. on ESPN

Hockey

The next generation of hockey's best are featured in the NHL YoungStars Game, which begins the league's All-Star weekend festivities from Xcel Energy Center in St. Paul, Minn. The wide-open affair features NHLers 25 or younger who are on the cusp of All-Star status. Following the game is the ever-popular SuperSkills competition, with All-Stars pitted against one another in skating, shooting, puck control and goaltending drills.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Daredevil

Another Marvel Comics character gets lavish, live-action treatment in this well-staged 2003 fantasy-adventure. Ben Affleck stars as blind attorney Matt Murdock, who perfects his other senses to the point of moonlighting as a costumed hero. He faces plenty of opponents, from a vengeful woman named Elektra (Jennifer Garner, "Alias") to a crime Kingpin (Michael Clarke Duncan) and his savage henchman, Bullseye (Colin Farrell).

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Hack

Olshansky's (David Morse) cousin (guest star Shane McRae), a veteran of the war in Iraq, considers taking a fatal plunge from a ledge in the new episode "Fog of War." The extent of the troubled man's problems becomes clear as Olshansky learns of his unhappy marriage, his addiction to painkillers, and his guilt over actions he and fellow soldiers committed overseas. Jay O. Sanders ("JFK") also guest stars.

8:30 p.m. on TNT

Movie: The Mask of Zorro

Don Diego de la Vega, aka the mysterious Zorro, passes the mask and cape to a younger man in this 1998 action drama. With his old nemesis — the evil Don Rafael (Stuart Wilson) — preparing to buy California from Mexico, an aging Don Diego (Anthony Hopkins) handpicks urchin-turned-bandit Alejandro (Antonio Banderas) to train as his successor. Catherine Zeta-Jones makes her mark as Don Rafael's adopted daughter.

9:15 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Monster's Ball

Halle Berry earned an Oscar — making her the first black performer to win the best actress award — for this stark, involving 2001 drama of two people drawn together in an unlikely way. Berry plays a widow romantically involved with the guard (Billy Bob Thornton) who stood watch over her convict husband (music impresario Sean "P. Diddy" Combs) on death row. Heath Ledger and Peter Boyle co-star.

9:30 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: The Dead Zone

It isn't hard to determine that this 1983 chiller springs from the mind of Stephen King. He had another best seller with the tale of a teacher (played by an ideally cast Christopher Walken) who emerges from a lengthy coma with the ability to "see" the past and the future. Martin Sheen, Tom Skerritt, Brooke Adams and Colleen Dewhurst also star.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"LOST IN TRANSLATION": One of last year's best-reviewed films, this excellent comedy-drama proves writer-director Sofia Coppola's well-received filmmaking debut, "The Virgin Suicides," was not a fluke. She makes Bill Murray and Scarlett Johansson ("Ghost World") one of the most affecting movie partnerships in some time, with Murray playing a fading film star who forges a bond with a photographer's wife (Johansson) while they're both visiting Tokyo. Being an American abroad gets considerable, intelligent consideration. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; extended scene; music video. * (R: AS, P)

"UNDER THE TUSCAN SUN": Fresh from her Oscar nomination for "Unfaithful," Diane Lane gives a charming performance in this romantic-comedy-drama, in which director-screenwriter Audrey Wells makes maximum use of Italy's countryside. In the adaptation of Frances Mayes' autobiographical book, Lane stars as a depressed divorcee sent abroad by a friend (Sandra Oh, "Arli$$"). The newly single woman invests herself in fixing up a villa, getting plenty of help from locals, including a potential new love (Raoul Bova). DVD extras: audio commentary by Wells; "making-of"

documentary; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"AMERICAN SPLENDOR": A big hit on last year's film-festival circuit, this clever adaptation of Harvey Pekar's comic-book series is narrated by Pekar, although he's portrayed in the film by Paul Giamatti ("Private Parts"). The script recalls the impact animator Robert Crumb (Jaes Urbaniak) had on Pekar, who felt adrift in life until he was able to channel his experiences into his print creations. Hope Davis also stars as a comics seller who gives added meaning to Pekar's life. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by directors Shari Springer Berman and Robert Pulcini, and cast members; "My Movie Year" comic book.  (R: AS, P)

"THE FIGHTING TEMPTATIONS": Cuba Gooding Jr.'s exuberance, combined with the allure of music superstar Beyonce Knowles, goes a long way in making this tuneful comedy extremely easy to take. Gooding plays a scheming ad man who returns to Georgia to claim his inheritance from an aunt - but to get the money, he must lead a church choir through a competition to a victory. Knowles plays a singer who joins the group. Steve Harvey, singer Faith Evans and actress-singer Melba Moore co-star. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; extended scenes; extended musical sequences.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"SECONDHAND LIONS": A youngster (Haley Joel Osment, "Pay It Forward") gets much more out of a summer vacation than he expected in this fanciful drama. His irresponsible mother (Kyra Sedgwick) drops him off at the home of his Texas great-uncles (Michael Caine and Robert Duvall), and their stories about their alleged exploits captivate their young visitor.

Nicky Katt ("Boston Public"), Josh Lucas ("Sweet Home Alabama") and Emmanuelle Vaugier also appear. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by writer-director Tim McCanlies; "making-of" documentaries; TV spots; deleted and alternate scenes.  (PG: P, V)

"MY BOSS'S DAUGHTER": Tara Reid ("American Pie") is the daughter and Ashton Kutcher is the "my" in this largely unamusing comedy, notable mainly for the presence of the always commanding Terence Stamp ("The Limey") in the thankless role of the boss. His house is minded by an eager-to-please employee (Kutcher) after the boss's daughter, who was supposed to be the housekeeper, appeals for a replacement. Michael Madsen, Molly Shannon and Andy Richter co-star. DVD extras: audio commentary by director David Zucker; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes; Tara Reid's audition.  (PG-13 and R versions: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"IN THE CUT" (Feb. 10): A woman (Meg Ryan) becomes deeply involved with a police detective (Mark Ruffalo) investigating several murders in her neighborhood. (R and unrated versions: AS, P, V)

"INTOLERABLE CRUELTY" (Feb. 10): A divorce lawyer (George Clooney) meets his match in a woman (Catherine Zeta-Jones) out to get all she can from her former husband. (PG-13: AS, P)

"DICKIE ROBERTS: FORMER CHILD STAR" (Feb. 17): David Spade plays a once-popular actor who wants to experience the normal childhood he never had. (PG-13: AS, P)

Familiar faces play 'Survivor' again as new season begins

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Much of the fun of "Survivor" lies in watching the players adjust to unfamiliar situations.

This time, though, the competitors know the game all too well.

Eighteen participants from the past seven editions are back in "Survivor: All-Stars," which gets a post-Super Bowl premiere Sunday, Feb. 1, on CBS. Moving to its regular time slot on Thursday, Feb. 5, executive producer Mark Burnett's unscripted series allows returning host Jeff Probst to show how much he already knows about the contestants ... who include some of the winners of past "Survivor" rounds.

Ready to try again off the coast of Panama to "outwit, outplay (and) outlast" the others for the $1 million grand prize are: Rudy Boesch, Richard Hatch (the winner), Sue Hawk and Jenna Lewis of the original "Survivor: Pulau Tiga"; Amber Brkich, Alicia Calaway, Colby Donaldson, Jerri Manthey and Tina Wesson (the winner) of "Survivor: The Australian Outback"; Tom Buchanan, Lex van den Berghe and Ethan Zohn (the winner) of "Survivor: Africa"; Rob Mariano and Kathy Vavrick-O'Brien of "Survivor: Marquesas"; Shi Ann Huang of "Survivor: Thailand"; Rob Cesternino and Jenna Morasca (the winner) of "Survivor: The Amazon"; and Rupert Boneham of last fall's "Survivor: Pearl Islands."

"The way I cast this was really sophisticated: I took a yellow legal pad and started writing down names," producer Burnett muses. "I came up with 24 (players who were wanted back), then realized I couldn't have that many, so I started taking people off the list. Two people wouldn't or couldn't do it. Elisabeth (Filarski Hasselbeck, of "Survivor: The Australian Outback") was about to get her chance to be on ABC's 'The View,' and she made a great choice by not going away since she got that job. Colleen Haskell, from season one of 'Survivor,' said she had just had enough and didn't want to go through it again."

After whittling away four more potential returnees, Burnett had no doubts the remaining 18 would be up for weekly challenges and Tribal Councils again. "I was surprised I even got one 'no,' to tell the truth. When I'm casting, I look for people who primarily are seeking adventure, and who secondarily want the money and the fame. These are people who realize how lucky they were to spend six weeks on an island with no telephone, no newspapers and no TV, really living like Robinson Crusoe. It's very hard but very fun."

While "Survivor: Pearl Islands" gave the Emmy Award-winning franchise a fresh twist by adopting a pirate motif, Burnett feels "Survivor: All-Stars" also adds a new spin by pitting veterans of the contest against one another. "Every year," he says, "people ask me, 'Once you know the game, how can it be any good anymore?' Things like 'Joe Millionaire' flopped their second time out, but 'Survivor' has gotten better like a fine wine, and so has the psychological game. Players have learned it from watching the show on TV or, in the case of 'Survivor: All-Stars,' from both TV and their previous experience of playing the game."

The initial behavior of the "all-stars" confirmed that Burnett has done his "Survivor" job right. "On the first day," he reports, "they were all very nervous, not knowing what was going to happen and not trusting anyone else. They'd seen so many twists and turns in the previous seasons, they didn't know if the game was going to start while they were on the airplane flying to the location. They were literally twitching. One female wouldn't let go of her sleeping bag for one minute - not even when she went to the bathroom - in case the game started right then."

(And who can blame her, since it started for the "Pearl Islands" players when they were thrown off a boat with only the clothes on their backs?)

Probst's exchanges with the "all-stars" are guaranteed to be edgier than in his initial encounters with them, since he clearly adopted a sassier approach during "Survivor: Pearl Islands." Burnett promises "major, major fireworks this time, because Jeff's not putting up with any shenanigans. He's always been that way, but you just hadn't seen it on TV. It took a while for some people to get comfortable with the idea that Jeff was entitled to have an opinion, as opposed to being an impartial newsman type, and I pushed and pushed until they allowed us to show that."

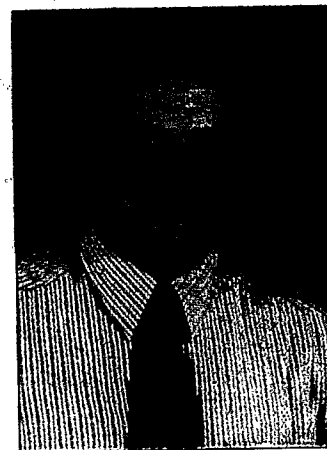

Also the originator of the "Eco-Challenge" competition, the England-born Burnett is involved as well with "The Apprentice," NBC's unscripted series that stars Donald Trump. Later this year, Burnett will launch a second season of "The Restaurant" on NBC, and he also has the Las Vegas-set "The Casino" in the works for Fox. However, none of those shows has gotten to inherit a traditionally huge Super Bowl audience like "Survivor" has.
